Virginia Beach Police Officers Cut And Stabbed On Job

By Greg Goldfarb,
Sun Editor

Virginia Beach Policeman John McDonald, third precinct, had not been assaulted at work for the last ten years.

That is, until last week. That's when he and fellow officer Richard Hatfield were maliciously assaulted by a 27 year old man carrying a one-piece knife with a four inch blade.

"There's a lack of respect for police officers,"

More articles, editorials on pages 12-15

McDonald told the Sun. "It may be caused by too many TV shows or movies, depicting cops as dumb. But it's more than that; it's actually an overall disregard for authority."

McDonald and Hatfield were slashed last week by William Sneed, a 27 year old Virginia Beach man. The officers approached Sneed after receiving a complaint about his behavior from an Independence Boulevard restaurant manager.

Virginia Beach City Council Actions

5.2 Units Per Acre

Beach Population Becoming Dense

By Lee Cahill,
Sun City Council Correspondent

On one side there were builder R. G. Moore, his attorney, Grover Wright, the prospect of "quality" housing and "affordable" housing and a divergence from density recommended by the city of Virginia Beach's Comprehensive Plan.

On the other side there were the city staff concerned about inadequate roads and the viability of the Comprehensive Plan.

The result was the approval of a rezoning which would permit 5.2 units per acre in an area where the Comprehensive Plan recommends a density of an average four units per acre.

Entering in the discussion was the definition of a "tract" whether the reputation of the builder had any relevance, and whether the inadequacy of city services should be considered at all.

White and Hoff Associates had applied for a change of zoning from R-5 Residential District to R-2 Residential District on a 49.707-acre parcel south of London Bridge Road, northwest of the intersection of London Bridge Road and Oceana Boulevard in the Princess Anne Borough.

On July 13 Council deferred the application to this Monday after a tie vote. On Monday, with a full Council, the vote was 7-4. Vice Mayor Harold Heischober who had voted against the rezoning on July 13, switched his vote and Councilman Dr. Clarence A. Holland who was absent during the first vote, also voted for the rezoning.

What seemed to be the deciding factor in Heischober's case was the definition of a tract of land. The definition he accepted allowed him to consider as one tract the 49.7 acres plus another 14 acres under the same developer. The 14 acres are zoned R-5 which will bring the overall average density for the two parcels down. Not to four units per acre, but lower.

During the first hearing, Wright argued that the average density for the area would be brought down even lower than four units per acre because other developments have fewer than four units per acre.

The existing zoning allows 149 single-family homes while the new zoning allows 298 duplex units.

Wright said the plan is to construct 34 single-family detached homes on the 14 acres and to construct single-family homes with zero lot lines on the remaining property which is permitted in the R-5 District. The 64-acre tract would have 300 units for an average density of 4.6 units per acre.

Monday he told Council that he appealed for rezoning in terms of quality housing. He said that the builder, R. G. Moore, has an excellent reputation. He said that all the units will be single-family for sale homes containing 1467 to 1600 square feet and selling for below $70,000.

In answer to a question from Councilman Dr. E. T. Buchanan on his definition of a tract of land, Wright said it was a parcel of land under a single ownership and control.

Heischober agreed.

Councilwoman Reba McClanahan said she commended Moore for his reputation but "I don't think it's relevant, I think who's who may be important to some people but what's what is important to me." She moved to deny the petition because public services were less than adequate and the rezoning was not compatible with the Comprehensive Plan.

Councilwoman Barbara Henley said that "if we're going to rise and fall on the basis of one tract..." She said that the cluster housing being considered by Council is designed to address questions like this. She held that the Comprehensive Plan was the greatest basis for planning.

Councilman W. H. Kitchin III said that "we are being asked to make houses affordable. We're opening the door to a plan before we evaluate the plan."

City Planning Director Robert Scott said that an evaluation of the Comprehensive Plan is on-going.

Kitchin said that moving away from the Comprehensive Plan to a policy for "affordable housing," is premature.

"The city has already deviated from the Plan," Councilman John A. Baum said. He added that court decisions indicate that local governments are to provide services and the inadequacy of services should not be considered in a rezoning.

"We're just pretending we have a plan, it seems to me," he said.

Councilman Patrick L. Standing suggested that too little thought has been given to changing lifestyles—the types of cars people buy, the impact on the highways, the cost of gas, the size of families, the size of homes and the way the automobile is operated. He said he might be pragmatic but that he "looked with jaundiced eye... after going through so many rezonings."

He referred to a "social state," and said, "If that's the kind of society you want I think you're living in the wrong country."

Heischober quipped, "I didn't know what affordable housing is. Now I know it's quality housing. I believe in the Comprehensive plan but when we have Moore's background an track record, we should go along."

"We going to put ourselves on a limb when we call one person a quality builder," Kitchin said. "Others will come in."

Councilman Reid Ervin said reasonableness should be considered. He said he voted against more Planned Unit Developments (PUDs) than anybody else on Council and against more multifamily developments than anybody else on Council.

Standing said that more classifications are needed in zoning districts.

Councilwoman Meyers Oberndorf refuted the argument that other developments were below the recommended density so that some could be above for an acceptable overall average density. She said if she were a businessman, "I don't think I would take a loss," to accommodate someone else.

Voting against approval were Henley, Kitchin, McClanahan and Oberndorf.

Back Bay Controversy

Beach Council Members Want Access To Info

By Lee Cahill,
Sun Correspondent

Virginia Beach Councilwoman Barbara Henley wants the city to be privy to any proposals made to allow more vehicles access through the Back Bay National Wildlife Refuge and False Cape State Park.

The residents of Sandbridge, which is in Henley's constituency, have opted increased access both the park and to homes in Currituck County, N.C. Henley said that council should write Governor John Dalton a letter requesting that Virginia Beach be allowed to participate in the formation of any plans.

Henley said she attended the press conference Saturday with Interior Secretary James G. Watt and Governor John Dalton. She said one proposal mentioned is a people mover which will transport 2,000 people a day to False Cape Park using the parking lot south of Little Island Beach as the pick-up point. Sandbridge residents have said that the streets through Sandbridge will not be able to accommodate all the traffic.

Also being considered is a plan to increase the number of permits issued to Currituck Sound residents who want to drive their vehicles over the beach to get to their homes. At present, only 39 homeowners have permits. Of the 3,000 lots in the subdivision, 300 have homes on them.

Henley said the Planning Department should have the opportunity to look at the proposals.

Increasing the number of permits, Councilman John A. Baum said, would be a bother. "A lot of us may want to go through Dam Neck (or other areas)" to get to destinations. The people who want access now have never had legal access, he said. Unless the people drive on the beach, 100 miles is added to their trips to Virginia.

Ervin said the people are slowly beginning to build pressure which would lead to "irreparable damage to the beach and refuge."

McCoy said he didn't think the Council should go on record as being for or against anything until actual proposals are made.

Hanbury said that he didn't think Council would favor having the 3,000 lots on that beach-front developed.

At present False Cape Park is accessible only by foot, bicycle and boat. Located between North Carolina and the Refuge, the park is accessible only by foot, bicycle and boat. The people mover mentioned by Dalton would have to cross the Federal refuge.

City Council Awards Money For Celebration

A $50,000 budget will help Virginia Beach celebrate the anniversary of the Battle of the Capes on Sept. 4, 5 and 6.

The city has budget $25,000 for the observance for children's booklets for the libraries, children's program throughout the school system, landscape improvements at the site, and 130,000 brochures. The remaining funds will finance a symphony, living encampment and a salute to the French.

Another $25,000 has been awarded by the General Assembly through the Virginia Independence Bicentennial Commission. They will be used to purchase a monument for the Cape Henry Overlook, a plaque for the Old Cape Henry Lighthouse, 30,000 brochures, a bust of Admiral DeGrasse for the Marine Science Museum, a telescope to observe the actual area where the battle took place, an audio station to broadcast a programmed tape describing the battle, commemorative medallions and other related items.

The Virginia Beach Bicentennial Commission is in charge of the celebration.

City Council Monday afternoon appropriated the state award.

Rehabilitation Grant For Non-Violent Offenders

By Lee Cahill,
Sun City Council Correspondent

Non-violent offenders will receive special help toward rehabilitation from a Community Diversion Incentive Program with a $125,948 grant from the State Department of Corrections.

Some skepticism over the program was expressed by Virginia Beach City Council members Monday afternoon, but they unanimously accepted the grant and appropriated the funds. At the same time Council established a Community Corrections Resource Board to qualify for the grant.

Councilman W. H. Kitchin III remarked, "It seems like we're going overboard." He referred to another program which permits an individual convicted of drunk driving to attend class as part of his sentence. If the drunk driver lost his license for life, that would be an incentive, he said.

Councilwoman Barbara Henley said she was concerned about creating another board.

Councilwoman Reba McClanahan could see numerous counselors needed for 100's of offenders. The program includes counseling services for employment counseling, psychiatric and family counseling, substance abuse counseling and short-term residential care in a non-institutional setting.

Of the first year grant of $125,948, $30,000 will be used for administration (community corrections coordinator and a part-time secretary). Funds to continue the program through at least two more years were included in the Governor's draft budget.

The program will deal with adjudicated non-violent offenders (involving property crimes). The board will consist of two members appointed by the chief judge of the Circuit Court, two members appointed by the Mayor and one member appointed by officials of the Department of Corrections. No reimbursement for expenses will be made.

"We can end up with counselors for every crime we have," Kitchin said.

Referring to the non-violent provision, Councilman John A. Baum said that "anybody who takes my property is going to have violence."

SPCA Money Questioned

The use of public money to help support the Virginia Beach SPCA has been questioned by the Virginia Beach Veterinarians Association.

Mayor Dr. J. Henry McCoy Jr. told City Council at an informal session Monday afternoon that the Association has charged that the SPCA is infringing on the activities of private veterinarian services.

City Manager George L. Hanbury said that the city contributes $10,000 to the SPCA and asked whether the complaints were "major enough to no longer give them the donation."

The veterinarians may have a legitimate complaint, McCoy said. The SPCA has recently started to offer veterinarian services for some animals.

Councilman Dr. Clarence A. Holland, who is a physician, said that medical doctors might make the same charge against the Health Department. He said to "let them settle it themselves."

Councilwoman Reba McClanahan pointed out that the animals receiving treatment are those no one else will take care of.

The veterinarians would not get money for these animals, anyway, Councilman Reid Ervin pointed out. The question got no further.

National Wildlife Federation Calls For Secretary Watt's Dismissal

By Charles Roberts,
National Wildlife Federation,
Special to the Sun

Beach naturalists have learned that the National Wildlife Federation has called upon President Reagan to fire James G. Watt as Secretary of the Interior.

Dr. Jay D. Hair, executive vice president of the nation's biggest citizens conservation group, said Watt has "lost the confidence of Americans who are concerned about our environment and the conservation of the natural resources Mr. Watt was appointed to protect."

The NWF, Hair said, has reluctantly decided that "the evidence of Mr. Watt's unsuitability for the job he holds has become so overwhelming . . . that the sooner he is relieved of his duties the better it will be for our country and our resources."

NWF has 4.5 million members and supporters in all 50 states. Before deciding Watt should be fired, Hair said, NWF made an in-depth study of his six-month record in office and "found it wanting in nearly every respect." NWF also polled 4,000 of its members and found that although they voted two to one for Ronald Reagan over Jimmy Carter last year, they rejected Watt's position on 10 of 11 current environmental issues.

The 117-page study of Watt's record and the results of the membership survey were made public at an NWF news conference. While other environmental groups have denounced Watt in recent months, NWF held its fire, Hair said, in the hope that "patience is the best remedy for every trouble."

The Federation tried to maintain a dialog with Watt while others were calling for his ouster. Hair continued, but finally found that "our patience has not been rewarded."

NWF found, Hair said, that Watt "places a much higher priority on exploitation and development than on conservation . . . that while he pays lip service to environmental protection, he is working to undermine or circumvent many of our basic environmental protection laws . . . (and) that he is inflexible and unresponsive to ideas and entreaties from the conservation movement."

Hair said he saw no possibility of "rehabilitating" President Reagan's most controversial Cabinet officer. and therefore "removal is the only option we see open to the President. We have reached this conclusion reluctantly—even sadly—because we have no personal animus against Mr. Watt, and we still want to cooperate with the Reagan Administration in bringing about the 'new beginning' for America that the President called for so eloquently in his inaugural address."

The NWF study of Watt's record listed what it called "ten Secretarial actions most damaging to the (see LIST, page 6)

List Of Damaging Secretarial Action Listed

conservation of our natural resources." The list:

- Crippling budget revisions
  - Emasculation of the Office of Surface Mining
  - Amended rangeland policy
  - Dismantling water policy reform
  - Moratorium on habitat acquisition
  - Accelerated offshore oil and gas leasing
  - Concessionaire management of parks
  - Less protection for endangered species
  - Law of the Sea Treaty scuttled
  - Destruction of Consensus on Resource Conservation
- It also contained a list of eight issues on which Hair said he asked Watt to take immediate action" during their June 9 meeting. The list included a lifting of the ban on park and refuge acquisitions to permit the purchase of "critically threatened" sites, a delay in oil and gas leasing on Alaska Wildlife refuges, a resumption of the listing of endangered species, and urgent implementation of new strip mine rules to prevent evasion of the Surface Mining Act.

In some cases, the study noted, Watt took no action and made no response. In others, he took a course of action opposite to what NWF recommended.

The poll of 4,000 NWF associate members revealed, according to Hair, that the Secretary is "out of step, not only with the views of conservation leaders who have called on him, but with the mainstream of American thought on conservation issues." The poll asked eleven questions on six environmental issues, including further acquisition of parklands, mineral exploration in wilderness areas, oil drilling in marine sanctuaries along the continental shelf, and further listing of endangered species.

Each question on the poll offered two or three choices which included positions that have been taken by or attributed to Secretary Watt. However, no option was identified as an NWF or Watt position.

Of the 65 percent of the members who returned their ballots, which were pre-tested to eliminate bias, 13 members favored NWF positions for every one who favored Watt's positions. Those who said they had voted for Reagan rejected Watt's positions by almost as big a margin as all NWF members.

The issue which received the highest anti-Watt response concerned those areas being studied for designation as wilderness. Only one percent agreed with the Secretary that industry should be allowed to explore wilderness study areas for oil, gas, or mineral deposits. Fifty-four percent thought wilderness study areas should remain closed to exploration during the study period, while 42 percent thought exploration should take place "only if companies are able to erase the effects of exploration in those areas where they fail to find anything." Two percent couldn't choose among the three positions, and one percent responded that they didn't know.

Members were also asked how they felt about Watt's positions on conservation and development. Almost 80 percent of those who felt qualified to judge Watt's policies said he is "too extreme in promoting development."

To provide a cross-check on the results of the general membership survey, NWF also conducted a poll of 167 of its grassroots leaders—officers and directors of its state affiliate organizations. Of these leaders, 117 responded—a 70 percent return, will all 50 states represented—and 61 percent reported that they voted Reagan (vs. 38 percent for Carter).

The leaders, this poll showed, were even stronger in their opposition to Secretary Watt than the random sampling of associate members. On the question of conservation vs. development, 81 percent said Watt was "too extreme" in favoring development. Only 1 percent agreed with Watt's call for oil, gas and mineral exploration of wilderness study areas.

Hair read his statement on Watt at a Washington news conference two hours after delivering to the White House a letter to President Reagan asking the President to dismiss Watt. The White House had no immediate comment on the letter or on NWF's request.

Summer Time Hazard

Fleas--A Warm Weather Pest

For the Virginia Beach household pet, summer means more walks on the beach, leisurely car rides and lazy days in the back yard. Unfortunately, summer can also mean more fleas.

You should suspect that your cat or dog has fleas if the pet scratches vigorously at the skin around the ears, neck, tail or hind legs. These are the areas most commonly infected by fleas. You can also part the pet's hair and look for small, dark brown insects that scurry away from the light.

Blood suckers

These small, blood-sucking pests can be much more than a passing nuisance. They feed on your pet's blood, and large numbers of them can make a young kitten or puppy anemic. They may also be the indirect cause of bald spots, redness or other types of skin irritation that develop when the pet scratches its inflamed skin. Fleas are also intermediate hosts for tapeworms. If an irritated cat or dog snaps at an infected flea and swallows it, the tapeworm will be released to continue its development in the pet's digestive tract.

There are a variety of products that you can choose to relieve your pet's flea problem.

Flea powders are easy to apply but messy. Some contain ingredients that kill fleas; others temporarily stun the insects, which must be brushed out of the pet's coat onto newspapers, and burned.

Shampoos are the most effective way to eliminate a heavy flea infestation. You begin by thoroughly wetting the cat or dog, starting just behind the ears, and working in the insecticidal soap from neck to tail. It's important to shampoo the entire animal, including the underside. You don't want to leave dry spots where the fleas can escape the shampoo. You should also carefully soap and rinse the pet's ear flaps and muzzle, keeping the soapy water out of the pet's eyes and inner ear canal.

Flea collars and tags are another way to attack your pet's flea problem. These products will slowly release insecticides for several months, if you follow directions for use carefully. The collars should be carefully adjusted so they don't rub the pet's coat or irritate the skin. The tags must be close enough to the body so pets can't chew on them.

Treating your pet is only half of the solution to the flea problem. The fleas must also be eliminated from your home or yard. If you don't deflea your pet's surroundings, the cat or dog will be reinfected in a few days.

You can begin by thoroughly vacuuming the entire house, with special attention to cracks, baseboards, and furniture

Fleas

(Continued from Page 7) where the pet sits. Make sure you discard the vacuum bag, or empty it promptly and burn the contents. You can then use a flea spray or flea bomb, or pay a professional exterminator to spray your home.

Eliminate fleas

Outdoor areas can be treated with an appropriate spray or dust. Cover the driveways, walks, building foundation, and areas where the pet sits. Be very careful to follow the directions, and keep your pet indoors until the job is done and the spray has dried. You don't want the pet walking or rolling in the treated areas for several hours.

Some insecticides that kill the immature and adult fleas have no effect against the insect's eggs and pupa resting stage. For this reason, the directions on certain products recommend retreatment in three to five days to kill the new generation of fleas. Do not apply flea products more often than the instructions suggest; they are strong chemicals and should be used with care.

Insecticides manufactured for home use should not be used on pets. These products may contain ingredients than can sicken or even kill your pets. Also, cats and dogs react to insecticides differently; a product designed especially for dogs may not be safe for a cat or kitten. It's always best to use a product that is recommended for your type of pet. If you have any questions about treating your pet's flea problem, it's a good idea to talk with your veterinarian. He or she can recommend an appropriate product and outline the best way to use it.

COMTACWING-SLANT

Command Charge Made

Rear Admiral Douglas F. Mow USN, has been relieved by Rear Admiral John H. Fetterman, Jr., USN, as Commander Tactical Wings Atlantic (COMTACWING-SLANT).

The change-of-command ceremony and Rear Admiral Mow's retirement from active Naval service took place in hangar 500 at Naval Air Station Oceana (NAS Oceana) in Virginia Beach. Guest speaker for the occasion was Vice Admiral J. R. Sanderson, deputy commander in chief U.S. Atlantic Fleet. NAS Oceana senior Chaplain, Captain C.E. LeMasters, offered invocation and benediction prayers.

Commander Tactical Wings Atlantic first established headquarters at NAS Oceana in 1974. The staff is responsible for the training and readiness of Atlantic Fleet tactical aviation units and exercises command over four functional air wings and the Ocean and Key West Naval Air Stations.

After Admiral Mow turned over command of Tactical Wings Atlantic to Admiral Fetterman he closed out 35 years of Naval service, a career which has spanned the globe and earned Admiral Mow 19 personal awards. Upon his retirement the Admiral plans to return to the civilian working community in the Washington, D.C. area.

Admiral Fetterman's latest assignment prior to assuming command of Tactical Wings Atlantic was in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, where, for the past two and one-half years, he commanded the Guantanamo Bay Naval Base, Naval Station and Naval Air Station.

Admiral Fetterman, a native Pennsylvanian, has been a Naval aviator for the past 25 years. Basically, the Admiral is an attack pilot, however, he has flown 20 types of Navy operational aircraft, accumulating in excess of 5,300 flight hours and 960 aircraft carrier landings.

Music for the ceremonies was provided by the U.S. Atlantic Fleet Band.

A lot less than you think. But the real question is: "What are your needs?" Do you need a brochure, a radio spot, a logo, public relations, speech-writing, artwork, or a full-scale campaign? Are you launching a new business or opening a new branch? Do you really need to advertise at all? Are you a small business or an established firm that requires free-lance service? # Big Fish Not Always Tastiest When Compared To Smaller Species

Little fish are fun to catch but few Virginia Beach anglers want to keep them for eating. They usually get tossed back because preparing them for the skillet is considered time-consuming and not worth the effort.

While admitting that small fish are more difficult to clean than large ones, Mercury outboard's fishing experts are quick to point out that bluegill, green sunfish, small crappie and other forage species are delicious eating and often taste better than their big brothers. Here are some tips that will ease the chore of cleaning small fish.

Holding the fish is the most difficult part of cleaning it. A terry-cloth towel works wonders, or dip the fish into vinegar and water solution to remove body "slime." If nothing else is handy, wet your hands and coat them liberally with salt.

Filleting with an electric knife is the easiest cleaning method, but this often wastes most of the meat on a small fish. A better technique is to skin the fish. Use a sharp, thin-bladed knife and cut just beneath the skin from the top of the head to the tail, around it on both sides, then along the belly and back to the gills.

Cut deeply around both sides of all fins and remove these by pulling them out with fingers or pliers. Cut off the head and tail, clean out the body cavity, then gently pull the skin loose on both sides. The result is a chunk of fish perfectly sized for deepfat frying.

The Law Of The Harvest

No gardener or farmer ever has a good crop unless he works hard and takes risks. This law of the harvest has universal application.

We must keep going on in spite of disappointments. Therefore, let's live for God. Let's persist in praying and reading His Word. Let's stay with that calling program and that Sunday school class. Remember, if we sow abundantly, we can expect a bountiful crop. That's the law of the harvest! —H.V.L.

"Nothing ventured, nothing gained."
We're sure to prove this true
if we expect a harvest
But think these' nought to do.

General Assembly Candidates Canvassed

Reverse Brutality Issue On Stage

By Greg Goldfarb,
Sun Editor

Virginia Beach candidates for Virginia General Assembly have announced their intentions, and are now preparing for party conventions.

Yet, as early campaign strategies evolve, and regional water and redistricting issues beckon to be addressed, another important Virginia Beach issue is begging for public attention: reverse police brutality.

Assaults on Virginia Beach police officers, city-wide, totaled 93 in 1979. In 1980, the figure climbed to 120. Through June of this year, 72 assaults have been committed on Beach police officers, which may result in 140 total assaults for 1981.

In Virginia Beach, assault on a police officer is classified as simple assault. If convicted, fines may range between $10 and $1,000 with no mandatory jail sentence. In other words, socking a cop is no worse than bobbing your boss.

Legislators and police professional agree, the charge of simple assault carries enough of a fine, if imposed, to deter certain members of society from defacing police officers. The problem, so it's rumored, is with those words, "if imposed."

According to many sources in the Virginia Beach Police Department, Virginia Beach general district and traffic court judges rarely impose substantial fines or penalties for persons convicted of assaulting police officers. Rather than imposing a 100 day jail sentence and $1,000 fine, for example, a judge may fine the defendant $10 to $30 and suspend any hoped for jail sentence. Needless to say, assaulted police officers don't appreciate this line of sentencing. There have even been reports that at least one Beach judge has asked officers to shake their assailants' hand during court. The officers despise this idea.

Here's where delegates enter the scene.

If judges won't take it upon themselves to dish out more punishment to people who assault police, the police will look to legislators for new laws which make it more difficult for a judge to dismiss a reverse brutality case so quickly. The drawback is, that even if new legislation is enacted which escalates the charge of assault on policemen out of the simple assault category, unless expressly written, the judge hearing the case could reduce the charge or still dismiss the case. So again, the ball rolls into the judges' court.

Reaction to reverse police brutality in Virginia Beach by legislators is varied. The following comments were made by General Assembly candidates and incumbents, during a recent Sun telephone canvass:

Incumbents

Delegate W.R. "Buster" O'Brien, (R), two years delegate, 24 year Beach resident, married with three children, lives in Alantoon section: "I feel that police officers are public servants, and should receive protection from the local criminal justice system. I think we have competent judges, but people must go to them if they have complaints. People can't change a judges' mind. Neither can I as an attorney or legislator. Many don't understand what a great thing it is for a judge to have discretionary power. Any infraction on the behalf of a judge, however, can be reported to a state judicial review board, composed of Virginia Supreme Court Justices.

"I would, if I'm fortunate enough to be re-elected, talk with officers and possibly enact legislation to help protect the police. I think we need more personal contact between the police officers and the legislators. We need to sit down with them and see if we can't give them some relief. In the meantime, the best thing for them to do is go themselves, or send representatives from the Fraternal Order of Police Lodge or something, to the judges and talk with them about their problems."

Delegate Owen Pickett, (D), 10 years delegate, 18 year Beach resident, married with three children, lives in Linlier section: "We already have adequate tools available to curb the assaults on police officers. But to deter future attacks on police officers, we may have to consider using other tools. The State Crime Commission has a special committee, headed by Delegate Ray Ashworth, and I asked its staff to look in to this problem in Virginia Beach. He said he and his staff would look into it. He should have data to make an assessment of the situation. I think Virginia Beach has an excellent criminal justice system. If the reverse police brutality rate is a rising trend, I'm definitely alarmed by it. It's obvious that respect for authority has

Attacks On Policemen Go Unpunished

"Judges don't see the blood"

By Greg Goldfarb
Sun Editor

There are four men who see a unique side of Virginia Beach policemen. These men are Virginia Beach Police Chaplains; local reverends and ministers who volunteer their time to ride with, and assist Beach policemen in their daily duties, and share their daily nightmares.

The Sun caught up with two of the four Chaplains.

The Reverend George T. Stallings, First Colonial Baptist Church, regularly rides with officers in the volatile second precinct, where the troublesome resort strip surges during the summer.

Stallings knows of the problems, and assaults that plague second precinct police officers over the summer.

"My philosophy is that a police officer is a servant of the city and the people; sworn to enforce the law," Stallings said. "They are not punching bags for those persons who wish to pick on police officers."

"I believe there ought to be at least a six month mandatory jail term for persons convicted of assaulting police officers."

Stallings said people should submit to police officers, and air any complaints over their actions in court. But it's that day in court that upsets most police officers.

"People think if they're drunk, they can go beat up policemen and get away with it," Stallings said. "The defendant will go before the judge, say he was drunk and became upset because the officer didn't talk to him right and assaulted the officer, but he didn't mean to. And, many times the man will be free to go after paying a minimum fine, much to the agony of the arresting officer."

Stallings said the internal affairs division of the Virginia Beach police department deals very harshly with problems within the ranks. He maintains that the department is "honest and dedicated, which is something I can't say for many others."

Virginia Beach traffic, and general district court judges, according to Stallings, are who could nip the problem of assaults on policemen in the bud before waiting for the General Assembly to create new laws.

"The Judges could correct the situation right now," Stallings said, "the laws are on the books which will allow a judge to impose jail time for simple assault. But what happens, is that the man comes into the courtroom and tells the judge he was out of his head when he struck the officer, and gets let free. Meanwhile, the cops are on the streets with a couple of teeth missing, and a broken nose, looking for help. It seems that today, society has more mercy for the criminal than for the police that are assaulted. The police are becoming disgusted."

Stallings says he's tired of a "permissive society" which allows infractions against law enforcement officers to occur.

"If this trend continues," Stallings said, "not only will the city lose police manpower, but it will lose the thousands of dollars it has invested in each of the resigned officers."

Stallings said he looks to the public and the press for exerting pressure on local judges and General Assembly delegates.

"If the news media would get behind this problem," Stallings said, "the General Assembly legislators would probably act."

"The citizens of Virginia Beach need to awaken to the fact that cops need protection. When I was a cop out in the county, residents were banished from the county for up to a year for assaulting officers. I don't know if you can do that here, but it worked back there."

A Forehead Heel Print

Virginia Beach Police Chaplain Don Staddon, who rides shotgun in the third precinct and is a former Virginia State Trooper, recalls an incident which drove home the impact of the reverse brutality problem in Virginia Beach.

"It was one morning about 2 a.m., and the car in which I was riding was called to check on a domestic dispute," Staddon recalls.

"We drove up to see a woman standing in the front yard screaming, crying, and bleeding. We found out that a man was in the house had beat her up and was now with the woman's sister in the house. Four police officers had arrived by now, and they went in. I followed, and found the other woman lying on the floor screaming and sobbing. She had a heel mark on her forehead where the man had kicked her. As I gave my attention to her, I looked up and noticed that the young man had started grappling with the officers. They had to subdue him, and in the process of doing their duty, received torn uniforms and blows to the face. I'm not sure, but I think that case was dismissed."

That incident occurred in the Winter of 1980. And yet now, in the Summer of 1981, Staddon admits, reluctantly, he didn't understand why such a case would be dismissed then or now.

"It's difficult for me to comment on such a matter," Staddon said. "I have a great respect for the law and the criminal justice system, and it's hard for me to criticize it, even if it's wrong. I know the officers were upset after the case was dismissed. I know the feeling of having a good case lost over a judge's decision. The problem is that the judges don't see the assault as it happens. And we don't understand his decision."

Staddon suggests that Virginia Beach judges ride with officers like chaplains do, and see for themselves what the job is like for police officers.

"The judge hears the case in a courtroom during the day and not at 2 and 3 a.m. like when the assault actually happened," Staddon said, "and that is the problem."

"The judges don't feel the passion, the heat, the violence, or smell the blood in the streets. It's hard for them to sit from behind the bench and visualize it. Let them ride with the officers on patrol for a time, I think that would make them understand what the policemen they are up against."

Staddon said individuals charged for the first time with assaulting a police officer should be taken very seriously, but not necessarily be given jail time. Second time offenders, however, should go to jail.

"Unless the first time offender has committed a serious assault against an officer, say one that incapacitates, that person should not necessarily be given jail time," Staddon proposed. "But any second offenders should be dealt with severely."

Staddon said seldom does a week's lapse that he doesn't hear officers talking about other officers who have been assaulted. He also said good public relations between police officers and the public is a must, and that judges try to perpetuate that spirit. However, Staddon doesn't think judges have the right to make assumptions over provocation in assault cases.

Staddon

"Judges have no right to assume that certain officers are more prone to assaults than others," Staddon said. "If there's no testimony that the officer provoked the assailant, then the judge cannot presume he did. But no power on Earth can change a judge's mind."

"If they need me," he said, "I'll help. I will not let my men be hurt."

Robb

Candidates denounce attack on Police

The rising number of attacks on Virginia Beach police officers has reached the state level. gubernatorial candidates Chuck Robb (D), and Marshall Coleman (R) and their offices, were contacted by the Sun to extract their views of this subject.

Robb: "Attacks on police officers are intolerable. If we increased the penalty for any assaults on policemen, and provided for sure and quick punishment, I'm sure it would deter attacks. We need a better reporting of the facts surrounding these assaults. We need the help of the press. We don't want a committee of vigilantes. We want to bring pressure on those charged with upholding and administering the law."

Coleman: "We propose uniform sentencing," a spokesman for Coleman spokesman said, "which sets certain mandatory penalties for certain crimes. I'm sure Marshall feels very strongly against assaults on police officers, and would want to deal with them severely. We must put the sentence change in writing, and call for stiffer sentencing."

Up For Re-election

Evans Opposes Assaults

By Greg Goldfarb,
Sun Editor

"I think a mandatory jail term should be imposed for persons convicted of assaulting police officers," said Virginia Beach Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans following his recent re-election announcement.

"Police are very visible signs of authority, and subject of much abuse. I have instructed my staff to help assaulted police officers in the prosecution of their assailants. This is unique because routinely, our office doesn't handle misdemeanor offenses."

Evans, who has been at his post for 14 years and boasts a conviction rate of 90%, said he assigns prosecutors to the lower courts five, instead of the usual three days a week. He also champions the technique of presumptive sentencing in dealing with assault offenders.

"Presumptive sentencing would eliminate, for example, sentences ranging from one day to 20 years," Evans explained, "and would narrow the mandatory sentence to between three and five years. This would make more certain the punishment of criminals for certain offenses, while still allowing the judge some flexibility."

Evans, 48, announced Sunday that he will seek the Democratic nomination for Virginia Beach's Commonwealth's attorney's seat.

Although not formally announced, Evans' opponent is likely to be Republican Paul Sciorlino, a 51 year old Beach lawyer and former head of the major offenses bureau, under Evans.

Flanked by his wife Nell, and their two sons, Jim and Avery, Evans said the commonwealth's attorney's office has kept pace with the constantly growing City of Virginia Beach.

"Although Virginia Beach is the largest city in the state," Evans read from a prepared statement, "we have maintained the 'neighborhood' quality of life that is so attractive to those of us who make this our home."

"Unfortunately, a community such as ours also attracts criminal elements. To meet this challenge I have developed special programs."

Evans refers to the major offense bureau, which "specializes in putting career criminals in prison where they belong." Evans notes the use of "vertical prosecution" whereby one attorney is responsible for a case from its beginning. Evans is also proud of his victim/witness program, which provides assistance for people subpoenaed to appear in court; and of the court docent program which allows Beach school children to observe the courts in action.

Evans said that during the last 12 months his office has made 7,808 appearances in Virginia Beach courts. Of the 1,974 cases handled, 1,776 resulted in guilty verdicts, resulting in a conviction rate of 89.96%.

Evans said he has set the following goals for the Virginia Beach Commonwealth's attorney's office:

- Continued state financial support of local law enforcement provided by House Bill 599. As a result of this legislation, the City of Virginia Beach will receive more than $6 million during the current biennium.

- Enactment of legislation that gives prosecuting attorneys the right to appeal questions of law. Allowing a criminal to go free on the unreviewable decision of a single judge is a denial of the public's right to a fair trial. Criminals have the right to appeal—so should the prosecution.

- Enactment of legislation that will retain jury sentencing while allowing for a two-part trial, one proceeding for the finding of guilt or innocence and another for sentencing. During the final part of the trial, the jury will be informed of both the defendant's prior record and the rules of parole eligibility. In this way we can have sentences that are fair for both parties. The scales must be evenly balanced, not tipped in favor of the criminal. The law-abiding public is entitled to equal justice.

Evans

• Punishment should be swift and sure and within presumptive guidelines established by the legislature. This will ensure, insofar as possible, uniformity and fairness from one individual to another while punishing the offender for his crime, deterring others, and keeping citizens safe and their homes secure.

Attacks On Police Occur All Over City; Norfolk Also

Attacks on police officers are not confined to a particular precinct, or city.

Well publicized are attacks on Virginia Beach second precinct, resort strip beat officers. The third precinct, however, reports "the second precinct always has more assaults on officers during the summer, but during the course of the entire year, assaults occur city-wide," said acting third precinct crime analyst D.L. Lowman. Lowman also reports that the first precinct, (in the southern part of the city) hasn't recorded an assaulted policeman in the last three weeks.

Debbie Clark, Virginia Beach Police Department statistician, reports that thus far in 1981, 72 officers have been assaulted in Virginia Beach. A breakdown of these offenses indicate that nine officers have been assaulted twice each; five officers, three times each; one officer, four times, and the other 35 once.

In Norfolk, according to Norfolk Police Department statistician Margaret Jordan, 146 police officers were assaulted in 1979; 130 in 1980; and 103 thus far in 1981.

Shattered Knee

McDonald received a small stab and cuts on the back of his arm. Hatfield received slash wounds on his face and arms. Both men were treated and released at Bayside General Hospital and are back on duty.

Sneed was charged with malicious assault, which is a felony offense.

In another unrelated event, second precinct officer Danny Barnette received a shattered knee in a recent Atlantic bar room scuffle.

Although no one was charged with assaulting Barnette, (his superiors report he injured his knee falling, attempting to subdue a subject). Barnette will be off the job for four weeks.

Editorial Comment

Public Sentiment Required

By Greg Goldfarb,
Sun Editor

Activating public sentiment, and acceptance of a challenge will protect Virginia Beach police officers from future assaults.

Outcries from the Virginia Beach citizenry, and from officers, may exert enough pressure on local judges to force them to impose harsher penalties for those who attack police officers. Without public pressure, expecting an attitudinal change from the bench is unlikely.

Consensus indicates that Virginia Beach judges are too far removed from the blood and violence which accompanies a police officer's dangerous, and stressful occupation. Virginia Beach Police Department officers and officials are reluctant to criticize local judges, or make too many waves over possible legislation in favor of their protection. Their only outlet is through the press, which in turn, may stimulate public sentiment for battered cops.

The burden of actually utilizing tools that would protect officers falls on local judges. Even if laws are rewritten to make assault against a police officer a felony offense, the judge would probably still have the authority to reduce the charge or dismiss it entirely. Virginia Beach general district and traffic court judges are challenged to use resources already available to them, in curbing attacks on police.

In 1978, the year latest comprehensive figures are available, out of a total of 431,000 law enforcement officers nationwide, 93 were killed and 2,220 were injured. In Virginia Beach, the next few years, assaults on officers will number in the hundreds.

Laws, in themselves, won't protect policemen. They are no more effective than the judges assigned to implement them.

A simple assault law, which attempts to be fair to all accused parties before the bench, is actually hurting police officers across the country, and will carry over into Virginia Beach.

A town or city without police protection, because police are being abused, is analogous to an old western town without a sheriff, or at best, an ineffective one.

Unless judges begin imposing increasingly stiffer penalties on those who assault policemen, there is likely to be high noon showdown between police officers, judges, and General Assembly legislators.

And true to the Old West movies, it's local residents who will be wounded in the crossfire. For certain, a lawless town which doesn't deter violence on its public servants, can certainly offer no protection to its residents.

Candidates Assault Views Vary

deteriorated. I will follow this matter, and if anything can be done I will support it. Maybe we need to make assault on police officers a separate offense. A judicial inquiry may be addressed by parties over the conduct of a judge. There should be constant sentencing.

Delegate Glenn McClannan, (D), 10 year delegate, Princess Anne County native; married with three children, live in Princess Anne Borough: "There's no question that police officers are entitled to the protection of the law. Just as you or I. But assaults occur while police function in the role of police work. Like any job, some things are attractive about it, and other things about it are not so attractive. Police officers need to know how to work under, and handle stress. Police officers have selected public protection as their field to work in. Police are like all people. They want higher wages and more protection, just like you or I would want. And, that's perfectly human.

"It is proper of the judicial system to have both parties of dispute go away from the bench without ill feelings. I'm not sure I approve of a police officer shaking the hands of his assailant, but promoting friendship is one of the functions of the court.

Incumbent J.W. "Billy" O'Brien, (D), could not be reached for comment.

Republican Candidates

Melvin M. Spence, 54, Norfolk native, 17 year Beach resident, married to former Virginia Beach school teacher Elizabeth Winesett and lives at 816 Libany Drive: "I respect and admire law enforcement officers. Everything possible must be done to protect them from abuse and assault. Due to the circumstances under which this type of offense could occur, the type of assault and ramifications involved, I believe that any first assault on a police officer should be left up to the discretion of the judge. I do support uniform sentencing of all second offenders.

"Yes, I believe the criminal justice system in Virginia beach adequately serves its citizens."

Julie Smith, 43, Alabama native, six year Beach resident and former Alabama school teacher, married with two children, lives in Kempville section: "Our entire criminal justice system is in shambles all over the state. Judges are too lenient in assault on police cases. I support legislation which would make that act a separate offense from simple assault. There is a law requiring a mandatory jail term for the use of a firearm. I think we need to require judges to impose a mandatory sentence for those who assault police officers. Our officers put their lives on the line to protect the citizens. In turn, the law should protect the officers. Until we have stricter sentencing laws, people will be more prone to assault police officers. We need to take discretionary power away from the judge.

"If there are cases of officers being asked to shake the hands of their assailants, I am absolutely not in favor of it. If that's going on, that's ridiculous."

Carter "Tuck" Anderson, eight year Beach resident, married with one child, lives in the North End section: "We have an excellent criminal justice system in Virginia Beach. However, the pressure must be kept up every day to insure its quality. I propose mandatory sentencing for persons convicted of assaulting police officers, with no parole for second offenders. The assault rate against officers is rising, especially in the second precinct. There were 40 of them assaulted at first of this year. That's too many. The indication is that there is a growing disrespect for the law. I used to be a summer policeman in Virginia Beach. I know police work is a highly rewarding experience. But people should see the life of a policeman from their standpoint. They have a hard job and have to make hard decisions. If they're not properly trained, they'll not act properly. Their training in interpersonal communication and relations in law enforcement is paramount. If I'm elected I'll introduce legislation to protect our Virginia Beach police officers. They need it and they deserve it."

Democratic Candidates

Robert Simpson, 37 year Beach resident, married with four children, lives in Bay Colony section: "I deplore any assaults on anyone, especially police officers. I worked as a park ranger in Williamsburg. I know that is a hazardous job and the police officers need protection. Virginia Beach is not unusual in its reverse police brutality problem. I think arriving at a solution will begin after an analysis of two areas: A comparison with other cities to determine if new legislation works; and secondly, the police officers should approach the judges and express their complaints.

"I would support mandatory jail sentencing, but you have to be extremely careful in advocating that type of law. Definitely, mandatory sentencing for second offenders, but not necessarily in every case. Suppose a teen assaults an officer, or a 65 year old man hits one?

Or an old woman, or a kid? You can't throw the baby out with the bathwater."

Robert Jones, seven year Beach resident, married with two children, lives in Bay Cliff section: "I'm a little leary of imposing a mandatory jail sentence. It may not be desirable to take away the discretionary power of a judge. Anyone concerned for a community must respect police officers; and they must respect judges too. It appears that the community is outraged by the attacks on the police. If people knew we had a hanging judge in Virginia Beach, there might be fewer assaults. But what usually happens is, a scared man goes before the judge expecting the worst and he gets a slap on the hand from the tooth fairy. My general concern is that the public give their support for the officer on the street.

"I support mandatory sentencing, but the judges must be sent a message from the people, in order for them to see the extent of the problem."

Sun Tourist Article Interesting

Editor:

Your July 15 report on the U. S. Travel Data Center Study was of interest.

I believe I can shed some light on the question of how Arlington has assumed the number one position in the State relative to total expenditures.

Although Arlington has fewer hotels than Virginia Beach they generally are larger. A 615 room Hyatt opens this year and the first half of a 910 room Marriott will open soon thereafter. An additional 3000 hotel rooms have been approved by the County and await construction. It is also significant that the Virginia Beach hotel trade is primarily seasonal while the demand for rooms in Arlington is relatively constant throughout the year. The final point is that Washington National Airport is located in Arlington and the associated travel expenditures from the airport are credited to Arlington.

I hope that this information will be of some help to your readers and businessmen.

Citizen Wants Fishing Spots

Editor:

I have been a tax paying citizen of your city for nearly seven years and I take this means of pointing out to you the positive and negative features of your fast growing city. It is a fishermen's paradise to a metropolitan area; not only the largest on the east coast, but of other parts of the country as well. For this you can be proud.

I know you had and are having growing pains. However, there is one thing you have overlooked. That is the acquiring of water front property for the sole purpose of establishing a public recreation area for your city citizens, with fishing, boating, swimming and picnic facilities for those of us who live here year round.

For this we could pay a modest fee. But honesty, do you know where you can cast a fishing line off shore, without public trespassing? Few of us can afford a fine for fishing from city property. A far cry from the city's beginning, wouldn't you say?

Another negative and then a positive. Your city does not have a conservative newspaper as such. A city of this size has a right to know the other side of the news, so as to judge as one sees fit. But we must take the quotes of such liberal papers as the monopolized Times-Post syndicate. One must subscribe to expensive magazines to get both sides of the news here.

Being a senior citizen, I must mention the positive side of your efforts in our behalf.

Due to the wonderful organization of your Parks and Recreation Department under the management of people as Murphy, Whitehurst, Wolf, Ally, and Stepp to mention a few, it is praised by many young and old alike. I sincerely hope you will continue to give them both moral and financial support to carry on their good work. We have nothing but praise for these people.

Bikers Ride

West To East Coast

By Greg Goldfarb,
Sun Editor

Richard Kline and Cathy Lucas rode bicycles from Tacoma, Wash., to Virginia Beach. It took them over 11 weeks. He is an education student at Western Washington University. She is a veterinarian technician.

It was a first look at Virginia Beach for both of them.

"I had the Summer off, so I decided to travel slowly and see the country," said Kline. "We were heading to Yorktown, and decided to come into Virginia Beach. I had never seen Virginia Beach before, but it sure is nice."

Lucas said her boss let her off for the ride.

"My boss is great," Lucas said. "He gave me a five month leave of absence to do it. He must really appreciate my work."

From Virginia Beach, the riders will bus to Miller, Penna., to see Goldie Kline, Richard's grandmother. Then, they will visit Hamburg, N.Y. to visit some of Lucas' relatives. Then it will be off to Toronto, Canada and a club car back to Washington.

Will they return to Virginia Beach?

That Is The Question

Theme Park, Or No Theme Park ?

By Lee Cahill,
Sun City Council Correspondent

Virginia Beach next Monday will decide what to do with the 16-acre city-owned former incinerator site off Laskin Road.

Residents have suggested a public park. Private developers have proposed a theme park.

Before deferring a decision to next Monday, Council Monday afternoon heard speakers expressing support or opposition to the proposals.

Jerry F. McDowell, who owns or has options on adjacent property, has proposed a Neptune Theme Park. He said it would not be like Busch Gardens, but more like Carmel in California or Mystic Seaport in Connecticut.

He said there would be no rides, and that the park would include crafts, specialties, an aquarium and design features. Also planned is a buffer of trees, shrubs and fences and a provision for pedestrian walkways at 28th Street. He said the city revenues would be increased and more jobs would be created.

Resolution Opposes Washington Air Service Change

Virginia Beach City Council opposed proposals approved by officials of the Department of Transportation and the Federal Aviation Administration which would affect air service between this area and Washington, D.C.

In a resolution approved Monday afternoon by a vote of 8-2, Council has asked that the new rules not be enforced until an independent evaluation presents the impact upon citizens of Virginia Beach.

The changes, scheduled to go into effect on Oct. 25, would transfer some of the flights which now use Washington National Airport to Dulles International Airport.

Mayor Dr. J. Henry McCoy Jr. said, "If you have to use Dulles, you may as well drive."

Councilwoman Reba McClause said that the proposals are "Northern Virginia's approach to the pollution problem."

According to DOT the new policy is designed to assure the maximum safety of air operations in the Washington area, reduce noise and congestion at National Airport and encourage greater use of Dulles International Airport. Over-use of the "close-in" Washington National can result in congestion, DOT says, and at the same time Dulles is operating well below capacity.

Kenneth R. Scott, executive director of the Norfolk Port and Industrial Authority which operates Norfolk International Airport, says that to accommodate additional long haul flights provided for the new policy, some of the present short haul flights will have to be eliminated.

The new rules also call for a limit of 16 million passengers a year at Washington National, forcing airlines with noisier aircraft or nighttime operations to use the larger Dulles Airport, constructing the connector highway between I-66 and the Dulles access road, making National Airport off-limits to virtually all the air carrier jetliners now serving the airport by 1986 (only the newer quieter planes will be permitted), and extending the nonstop limit for National departures from 630 to 1,000 statute miles.

Councilman John A. Baum and Patrick L. Standing voted against the resolution. Councilman Reid Ervin was absent.

He said there would be no attempt to move Seaside Park (an amusement park with rides) to the area and that the only rides will be on the water. He asked Council to wait until he had detailed plans available, perhaps until September, before taking action.

Mrs. Alice S. Mullen said that there have been misunderstandings about the park. She said it would provide for performing arts and that it was a good idea for Council to wait until it had more facts in hand.

She said the park would not have a carnival-type atmosphere.

McDonnell said he has consultants from California and Williamsburg and asked, "Let us complete a study and come up with a plan."

"What I'm proposing is outstanding, unique," John F. Nix, deputy executive director for 10 years for the Virginia Port Authority until June 31, said he had known McDonnell for many years and that he was an importer and exporter who promoted the ports.

Helen W. Smith, of 311 48th Street, co-chairman of the legislative committee on local affairs for the North Virginia Beach League, said the Board of Directors opposes the use of the property for a theme park.

At an executive session on Aug. 3, City Manager George Hanbury said, the consensus of Council was to abandon any further consideration of suing the land as part of a theme park and to study the possibilities with landscape architects of developing this site into a publicly-owned recreational area which would complement the natural setting.

Nancy Parker Monday took issue with a letter written by Hanbury to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers on May 13, 1981 "which sounds as though Hanbury has already committed the property."

Approximately 50 persons in opposition to the theme park attended the Council session.

Theresa Brock, of the Bay Colony and Cavalier Park Civic Leagues, said the city should develop the property. "We don't want any developer to go in there and develop anything."

Peter Manson, of the Linkhorn Park Civic League said the League wants the land to be reserved for future public use, such as tennis courts and playing fields "which are sorely needed in the area."

Sam Houston, another North Virginia Beach resident, a spokesman for the aging, said the aging in the community don't need something like this right beside them.

"The citizens have the right to something ... It can be a beautiful park. People of the city should have a public park...The theme park is going to run boats up Little Creek...Any consultant you pay will say what you want."

Councilman John A. Baum said he didn't see anything "sinister" about Hanbury's letter to the Corps. "The issue is how to use city property."

Councilman W. H. Kitchin III said that a fill permit for the property would be "impossible". He added that in a telephone conversation with McDonnell he understood that a theme park would not have to be on the incinerator site. He said that since May 1 McDonnell has said what he was going to do, but that he has not produced anything.

Hanbury said that if the city decided to dispose of the property, it would put out design bids so that development would be controlled.

"I favor developing the land," Hanbury said, "because I also support public development." As for his letters, he said all his statements have to meet the concurrence of Council.

Councilman Patrick L. Standing said that disposing of the land would deprive people a place for recreation. "There needs to be a place there. The city is usurping a lot of land for recreation by using it for water tanks."

Virginia Beach City Employees Give 450 Pints

Virginia Beach employees on June 16 contributed half of the 450 pints of blood needed per day in the area served by the Tidewater Red Cross Blood Service.

They were recognized for their contribution with a plaque Monday presented by Karen Wolff, City Manager George L. Hanbury said that twice a year employees are asked to participate in community activities — once with money for the Community Fund and once with blood for the Red Cross. Both times the employees have come across, he said.

To Upgrade Stores

Beach Resort Strip Zoning Reconsidered

A special zoning classification is being considered for the resort strip from Rudee Inlet to 40th Street.

City Manager George L. Hanbury, at an informal session of City Council Monday afternoon, said the staff was studying proposals originally made by attorney Grover Wright to establish special zoning to meet the unique situation in the Beach Borough.

He said that Council has been invoking the Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance on businesses interested in upgrading their establishments, but the Board of Zoning Appeals has routinely been granting variances. In a suit filed by linkers against the Board, the Court held that the Board cannot grant variances routinely because the situations are not unique. The ordinance, which requires that parking requirements be less stringent or non-existent, cannot meet parking requirements under the CZO.

Hanbury said the businesses should be allowed to be upgraded or they will decay.

He said the staff is "taking Grover's suggestion" and is considering a new zoning category with the same requirements as a B-4 (it would be B-5) except for parking.

He said that the Borough would be upgraded but the parking problem would be a problem. He said that if the improved zoning is put in more tax money, the city would not be too great for the public.

Good Business Either Way

Farmers Market: Ag or Social?

By Lee Cahill,
Sun City Council Correspondent

A Farmers Market isn't what it used to be, a place for Virginia Beach farmers to market their produce.

It's more of a cultural and recreational activity said one tenant at the Virginia Beach Farmers Market and should be under the city's Parks and Recreation Department rather than the Department of Agriculture. Lemoina Cree, who with his wife Marlene operates Chickasaw Farm at the market which includes the Country Bakery and produce sales, said that 500 farmers markets are under construction in the country, but not for the original purpose of furnishing a marketplace for farmers. They are being constructed to revitalize downtown and other areas.

Cree said the Agriculture Department is not geared for the modern-day farmers market and in Virginia Beach, he said, it has resulted in mismanagement.

City Manager George L. Hanbury told City Council at an informal meeting Monday afternoon that the city has received complaints from only four individuals including Chickasaw Farms and (Leo) Hewitt Farms.

But Cree maintains that most of the tenants feel the way he does but are intimidated by Dick Cockrell, Agriculture Department director.

Cockrell, he said, is like a dictator and won't listen to suggestions from the merchants. He pointed out that most of the merchants have big investments in the market and have installed improvements ranging from $2,000 to $125,000.

Among the most serious of the problems is parking. However, suggestions made by the merchants to improve the situation have been turned down by Cockrell. He said parking would be adequate merely by designating parking areas for the merchants who now must take up 50 percent of the rear and sides. Other parking suggestions were to allow parking around the inner circle which Cockrell turned down, Cree said, because a fence would interfere with the view of the flowers, and the use of a city parking lot less than a block away.

As the problems mounted the city assigned a management team including Cockrell, Assistant to the City Manager Sam Clay, J. R. Nutter from the City Attorney's Office and R. E. Hutton, the market manager. The purpose of the committee Cree said, was to appeal decisions made by Cockrell.

Cree also said signs are needed to direct people to the market. He said there is only one sign at Princess Anne Road and Landstown Road visible to motorists coming from Kempsville. There is no sign visible from the other direction. Cree said he had his own made up two years ago, took them to a meeting of the management team, but "they confiscated my signs" and told me the city would see to it that the proper signs were up. That was two years ago and still there are no signs, he said.

Cree said that he thought the city would be more interested in publicizing a million dollar investment.

At the Monday Council meeting Hanbury said he did not share the view that the city doesn't care anything about the market. "We would never had had it built," he said that the rents charged were not sufficient to pay the cost. He said the city does not take out any paid advertisements, but that Cockrell does a good job publicizing the market through public service advertising. Tenants are responsible for their own advertising, he said. "I can't see much substance to any of the complaints," he said.

As for the complaints about pot and alcohol use at the market, he said the Country Hoe Down may be the source.

Councilman Patrick L. Standing said he'd heard a lot of good comments about the Country Hoe-Down.

Hanbury said that he was "afraid you have that (pot and alcohol) anytime you have congregations of people.

Referring to news stories about the problems, Councilman John A. Baum said the merchants should be more responsible than to go to the press.

Vice Mayor Harold Heischberger said he's heard more good than bad about the market, but that there is a real parking problem there and more direction of traffic is needed.

Cree said that he and Peggy Hackett organized the Friday night Hoe-Down and that the city did build a nice pavilion for performances. But Friday night is a big night for the market with trucks unloading for the weekend, and the "many, many people, drugs and alcohol — it doesn't mix very well."

Cree said the best thing would be for the Agriculture Department to give it up and to place the market under Parks and Recreation which ran a pumpkin contest there.

He said that the market has no petting zoo, nothing for children. He said tourist buses stop there and there is no one to greet the tourists.

He said two years ago Cockrell and Hutton and a majority of merchants attended a meeting and planned to meet four times a year. Not one meeting has been held, he said.

Cree said that from 75,000 to 100,000 people visit the Market each month.

Stacked Trash Smells

Reduce Flies, Odors

The Virginia Beach Health Department offers the following suggestions to help residents with once a week refuse collection:

- Use only cans with tight fitting lids.
- Use plastic can liners.
- As each can is filled, tie off the liner and replace the lid.
- If space permits, keep partially filled cans in the garage or store them in a shady area away from the back door. Heat speeds up decomposition.
- Put odorous foods, e.g. crab shells, fish cuttings, onions and other meat and vegetable scraps that deteriorate rapidly, in a separate tied bag before placing in the can. (If space permits, store them in a refrigerator until pick up day).

- Break down small boxes and cartons before placing them in the can, this saves space.
- Inspect empty cans for maggots. If any are found, spray with an insecticide to prevent them from becoming adult flies.
- By following the above tips, you will reduce your fly, animal and odor problems.

First Time Students Need Phys

All elementary and kindergarten students entering a Virginia Beach school for the first time must show proof of having received a complete physical examination within the 12 months preceding the enrollment. Physical exam forms are available at the office of each school. Under Virginia law, a child may not attend school until this requirement is met.

Proof of immunization, (including date received), against diphtheria, pertussis (whooping cough), tetanus, polio, reboela (measles), rubella (German measles) and mumps is also required of any elementary student entering a Virginia Beach school for the first time. Parents or guardians are urged to begin early to ensure that all immunizations are completed prior to the beginning of school attendance.

School physical examinations are offered to new students and new teachers who are military dependents at the Sewells Point branch ONLY of the Navy Regional Medical Center. An appointment is necessary; it must be made by calling 398-5474. Oceana Naval Air Station dependents may receive the physical exam at the Oceana Clinic, but appointments must be made by calling 425-2336. Required X-rays for new teachers who are military dependents may also be obtained at Boone Clinic at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base. Immunizations are offered to military dependents on a walk-in basis, Monday-Friday, at the facilities of Sewells Point, Boone Clinic, Oceana Clinic, and Portsmouth Naval Hospital.

In addition, the Virginia Beach Public Health Department offers the services of three clinics to help children entering the city's public schools complete their basic immunization and school physical requirements.

Free immunizations are offered at the clinics, which are located at the Princess Anne Municipal Center, on the beach front at 19th and Arctic Avenue, and in the Pembroke area at 930 Independence Boulevard.

The clinics will also give physical examinations to indigent students entering Virginia Beach schools for the first time. Others are charged a fee on sliding scale based on family income. Appointments are necessary.

Scheduled hours for the clinics at the Municipal Center, at 19th and Arctic Avenue, and at 930 Independence Boulevard, may be obtained by calling the individual clinics.

Keeling Honored

Virginia Beach musician John Keeling has been recently honored by The City of Virginia Beach.

"He's a fine man and he deserves recognition for the good things he does in Virginia Beach," said former Beach city councilman Buddy Riggs.

"Every weekend for the last two years, John has played for free at Virginia Beach's farmer's market on Princess Anne Road."

Riggs, a Beach businessman, said usually over 400 people turnout on Friday nights to square dance and listen to Keeling's country music.

Keeling is a "landmark of the farmer's market," according to a letter of appreciation written by Virginia Beach Mayor J. Henry McCoy, Jr., and presented to Keeling by Riggs.

"This man has lost money by playing on Friday nights at the market, instead of paid gigs," Riggs said, "but he enjoys doing it. And the people really appreciate it. The letter is just a small way of letting John know how much we think he has done for Virginia Beach. He makes the farmer's market a fun, family place where people can buy fresh produce and have a good time all at once."

"The Strip Is A Gas!"

"We will return," they said. "Virginia Beach is not as busy and congested as we thought it would be. There is a lot of farm land and really nice open spaces. The strip and all is a gas. We really had the wrong impression of the place before we got here."

Kline and Lucas said the most dangerous part of the journey took them through Eastern Kentucky. "They'd kill you there, I believe," Kline said. Kline, 27, and Lucas, 25, rode Takara, Japanese, and Motebacone, French, bicycles.

Attack On Policewoman Could Have Been Murder, C.A. Says

By Greg Goldfarb,
Sun Editor

In Chesapeake, Robert Ward is in jail for assaulting a Chesapeake patrol officer, Virginia Beach residents have learned.

Ward's brother, Joseph Andrew is also in jail for assaulting a Chesapeake patrolwoman. Chesapeake Judge William L. Forbess sentenced both men.

"Robert is serving 120 days for simple assault," Chesapeake Commonwealth's Attorney Robert Kowalsky said, "and his assault on officer R.A. Koziana was not as aggravated as the assault on patrol woman Aida Schimmel. But the patrolwoman's assailant had a clean previous record compared to the brother who had police record for several burglaries and was still on parole."

Joseph Andrew "Andy" Ward had been charged with malicious wounding with intent to maim, a felony charge carrying a five to 20 year jail term.

Ward and his brother Robert assaulted the officers during a skirmish in The Breakfast Shoppe, in the 200 block of Battlefield Boulevard, outside Great Bridge.

"The brothers had come in, drunk, screaming and yelling about how sick they were of seeing yellow Hostage ribbons," Kowalsky said. "They were cursing and belligerent. Koziana tried to quiet them down when Robert began fighting with him. Patrolwoman Schimmel went to his aid and the other brother, Andy, pushed her down into a booth, took her highlight from her, and began beating her with it. Testimony indicated that he struck her 10 to 12 times as fast and as hard as he could. She was about 5 foot one or two and probably doesn't weigh more than 100 pounds. Her assailant was 5'10" or 11" and played football. Schimmel's little finger, which protected her head from the strikes was disfigured permanently, is probably the only thing that prevented this case from being a murder case."

A Chesapeake Circuit Court, however, determined that Andy Ward did not maliciously intend to hurt Schimmel. Ward was subsequently fined $1,000 and sentenced to one year in jail by a jury. His brother, was given one 60 day sentence for assaulting Koziana, plus 10 months for violation of parole, plus 60 more days for interfering with the police.

Was Kowalsky satisfied with the decision of the jury? "If you had asked me that question right after the trial, I would have undoubtedly said no," Kowalsky said. "I still think, with the evidence, that either of the two greater charges would have applied to Schimmel's assailant. But a Supreme Court definition of 'malice' was read to the court which made them decide Ward didn't act maliciously. Apparently suffering a permanently disfigured finger isn't enough of an injury of maiming to say it had been performed with malice. But Ward is lucky that the finger was all that was damaged. Schimmel received a cut on her head also, requiring about nine or 10 stitches."

Kowalsky said if Schimmel hadn't raised her hand to protect her head, the assault charge could have been murder; or, Schimmel may have suffered brain damage. He sees the problem with assaults on police officers, but doesn't know how Virginia Beach judges can be persuaded to impose harsher penalties on people who assault police officers in Virginia Beach.

"I don't know the answer to that," he said. "In this last case, I requested a jury. I didn't want one judges' decision. But this was a felony case. Juries can't be requested in misdemeanor offenses such as simple assault."

Ward's statement to police indicated, according to Kowalsky, that the assaults on the police officers were provoked.

"His statement said that Koziana was pushing his muscle around, trying to impress and win favor from the female officer," Kowalsky said.

Several Last Weekend

Assaults On Beach Police Officers Continue

"We had a fight Sunday night in the lock-up area of the third precinct," reports Virginia Beach Police Sergeant G.M. Van Auker. "That night, both a man and a woman were charged with simple assault after punching a police officer in the face."

Assaults on Virginia Beach police officers continue. In addition to Sunday's incident, there was trouble also on Saturday.

"That night, an English sailor off the 'Invincible' was being searched while facing the wall," Van Auker said, "when the fellow turned around and took a full swing at the officer. But the magistrate on duty that night, Magistrate Nixon, did not issue a warrant for that person's arrest. Other magistrates won't even discuss the assaults with the police officers."

Van Auker said he doesn't know how to react to the increasing local violence.

"I don't know what the problem is," he said.

"In years past, people would try to protect police officers. But that attitude is going downhill fast. Attempted, and completed assaults from drunks is expected. It goes along with the turf. We try as hard as possible not to get in scuffles with people, but sometimes it's unavoidable."

Van Auker said he doesn't know how to get Beach judges to impose harsher penalties on those who assault police officers in Virginia Beach.

"They're pretty good about looking out for their officers in Portsmouth and Chesapeake," Van Auker said, "but we've got a problem here in Virginia Beach. We don't know the answer. We don't control the judges; they do as they damn well please. They don't explain the decisions they make and have never tried to talk to Virginia Beach police officers about the rising rate of assaults against the Virginia Beach officers."

IRRITABILITY: ITS CAUSE AND CURE
 Love suffereth long, and is kind;...seeketh not its own, and is not easily provoked.

1 Corinthians 13:4,5

When busy Martha saw Mary seated and talking to Jesus, she became irritated. Her frustration was undoubtedly reflected in her voice as she complained to the Master about her sister. Irritability mars the happiness of many homes. It's a problem experienced by young and old alike. Anyone who's been around teenagers has heard something like this: "Mother, tell Susan to help me with the dishes. She's watching TV as usual. She always tries to get out of doing her share of the work." I recently saw an ill-tempered husband bring pain to an elderly woman. Everything she said and did seemed to rub her husband the wrong way. I felt sorry for them. They did care about each other, but his grouchy mood was hurting their relationship.

Whenever you feel grouchy and are easily upset, remind yourself of 1 Corinthians 13 and silently ask the Lord to help you apply it. You'll be a better person and your home will be a happier place.

With Tidewater's hot temperatures outside many people in Virginia Beach are concerned with keeping the high utility cooling costs down.

These tips may help keep your home cooler and your cooling costs down.

These tips may help keep your home cooler and your cooling costs down.

•If you are getting ready to repaint your home, try a lighter color. Light colors reflect more sunlight and absorb less heat.

•Check insulation, caulking and weather-stripping through your home. Many people think these measures are only for the winter months, but they work just as effectively during the summer to keep warm air out.

•Install fans in your attic to move the hot air out as it collects there.

•Choose efficient cooling units, and keep them clean and in good repair. Air conditioning units are labeled with an energy efficiency rating (EER) that tells how efficient the unit is. Higher numbers mean more efficiency.

•If you have refrigerated air, keep the unit on 78 or 80 degrees. Be sure not to block the air flow.

•Shade windows from the outside and keep windows covered from the inside on the sunny sides of the house.

•Open the refrigerator as little as possible, check the door seal and clean the coils to be sure the unit is running efficiently.

Letters To The Editor

Bert Miller Praised

Frank was SOPA at the picnic, so I singled him out of the more than 100 people present for a sea story. The others were too busy swimming, eating chicken, and corn on the cob, provided by the picnic committee at the Bob Kepner homestead. He stood straight as a die and was sharp as a tack as he proudly wore his submarine vest, made by his wife Ethel. It must have been great to be ships company with Bert.

He was only 15 years old in 1918 when he signed in as Apprentice Seaman at Newport, R.I. boot camp. Six weeks later he was shoveling coal aboard the old four stacker, USS St. Louis CA-20. After hauling 8,437 US troops back from France after WWI, Miller caught the M-1 (SS-47), his first submarine.

His most exciting cruise aboard M-1 was on the end of a toeline, behind the cruiser St. Louis, all the way to the Azores. The M boats just were not quite the fleet type yet. Bert, age 79 now, and Fitzsimmons, age 86 and in a rest home in Seattle, Washington, are the two lone survivors who sailed on M-1. Bert also was TAD aboard the submarines S-10, S-11, S-12 and S-48 in his long Navy career.

But Miller's heart was in deep sea diving. He rose through the ranks or LCDR in 1939 and today still proudly wears the gold officer's diving pin. His record of deep sea diving is almost endless.

He was master diver aboard Falcon ASR-2. Falcon served as a light ship and as a salvage ship. CDR Miller helped in the S-51 (SS-162) salvage operation in 1925 when S-51 was rammed and sunk by the steamer, City of Rome, off Block Island. Only three people survived that sinking.

On 11 December 1927 the submarine S-4 (SS-109) was rammed and sunk off Cape Cod by the US Coast Guard vessel Paulding. There were no survivors. Miller helped raise her. S-4 was then towed to the Boston Navy Yard and later recommissioned.

The airship Akron was wrecked in a storm off the New Jersey coast in 1933. Miller helped in those diving and rescue operations.

In 1939 he helped rescue 33 survivors from the submarine Squalus SS-192 off Portsmouth, N.H. She was refloated, towed to Portsmouth, and recommissioned USS Sailfish on 15 May, 1940.

Master diver Miller was instrumental in the rescue efforts when O-9 (SS-70) went down 15 miles off Portsmouth, N.H., on 19 June, 1941. All rescue efforts failed and O-9 is still on the bottom with all hands.

In April 1942 the US Destroyer Roper DD-147 sank the German submarine U-85 off the North Carolina coast. Rescue and salvage operations, details of which are still classified, were conducted by CDR Miller.

Bert and his wife, Ethel, live at 1149 Ferry Plantation Road, Virginia Beach, Va. Their other daughter lives in Wichita Falls, Tx. Both she and her husband are lawyers.

Beach Residents Alerted To Clearinghouse

Editor:

A new clearinghouse operation is aiding anti-crime cooperation between citizens and law enforcement officials.

The National Neighborhood Watch Association is expanding and strengthening the community crime prevention programs by working with member citizens and neighborhood groups.

The non-profit citizens' organization is designed to draw on advice, materials, and services of security experts. It emphasizes public awareness, crime prevention education, and community cooperation.

"The information is there, but it isn't reaching the people," says Ronald L. Hyden, NWA president. "Police and security experts are as concerned about street crime as the citizens. But their techniques go to waste when they aren't used by the people who need them."

Crime analysts have credited neighborhood watch groups with reducing crime and improving cooperation between citizens and officials in communities throughout the nation. Chief Justice Warren Burger defended the positive contribution of such programs when he contrasted them recently with outbreaks of "vigilantism."

"Watch groups have shown what the people can do working together with their local officials," agrees Hyden. "But together with their local officials," agrees Hyden. "But volunteers are handicapped by limited local resources, and lack of contact with other neighborhoods that have already solved similar problems."

The NWA clearinghouse will provide members and community minded organizations and firms with crime prevention materials, information exchange and other problem-solving services. A membership campaign is under way to identify existing watch groups that need information and assistance, as well as encourage new neighborhood projects.

Need for local crime prevention aid has increased since funds for the federal Neighborhood Watch Program were withdrawn from the Carter Administration budget. Although NWA is recently formed and dependent on dues and contributions, Hyden hopes to focus public awareness quickly, to help counter the expected crime surge this summer.

Citizens interested or involved in crime prevention efforts may obtain information from National Neighborhood Watch Association, Post Office Box 17400, Washington, D.C. 20041, or by calling (703) 471-0404.

Linda Love,

Can Cause Herpes

Brief Encounters

By Greg Goldfarb,
Sun Editor

The Virginia Beach Department of Health treats up to 50 people a day for gonorrhea. Teenage pregnancies at the Beach number 1,000 a year, with 50% of those aborted.

Herpes, the menacing venereal disease that can kill newborn children is also prevalent in Virginia Beach, but not reported regularly to health department officials.

"Herpes is not a reportable disease," said Virginia Beach Department of Health Director Dr. George C. Sjolund. "That means, the number of people going to the VD clinic for herpes usually goes undocumented by health officials. Usually, the person is treated for herpes and released. It's a very common disease."

Sjolund said Virginia Beach teenagers continue to contract and spread the venereal diseases. The problem is with providing proper education to teenagers and parents, to deter the disease spread.

"People involved with sex need the education," Sjolund said. "Many times parents don't communicate information about VD to their children. They want their children to learn this from another source."

Last January the Sun first reported the epidemically high rates for teenage pregnancies and Beachers with VD. (Sun, Jan. 22). Since that time, little has changed to stop increases in either area.

"I don't think there has been any change in the magnitude or the severity of the problems in Virginia Beach, since the last Sun article," Dr. Sjolund said. "There is always an increase in VD over the Summer, usually resulting from the additional out-of-town people who visit the city between May and September. But there's no change in rates since early this year. We still treat up to 18,000 Beach residents for gonorrhea a year."

"Another danger to Beach women is herpes. It is not a deadly disease, but it can be very dangerous, and is incurable. The real danger with herpes is for the pregnant woman. If she has active, and I stress active, vaginal herpes while giving birth, it could affect the new child's central nervous system and can cause death. But many pregnant women have herpes while pregnant, and it is harmless unless the lesions are open and active."

Community education

Sjolund said proper community education is the key to reducing VD and teenage pregnancy rates in Virginia Beach. The health department, however, does not advise public school officials; nor do they conduct research to combat the sickening foes. Instead, the department reports the facts and figures and rely on the private sector of the community to push for action.

"If the citizens of Virginia Beach want some type of formal sex education," Sjolund said, "they must push for it. It is not the role of the health board to set or even suggest policy affecting these issues."

"Sex education in the schools is a controversial issue. I think however, that a voluntary program may be accepted by some of the city's minors. But reducing the rates we've mentioned is not easy. To see a decline in the rates, a voluntary program would have to be instituted for five to 10 years, with at least a 50 to 60% participation level by the students. They need to learn

✓ Grasse Statue Up

Mrs. Milton W. Thorpe, immediate past president of the Council of Garden Clubs of Virginia Beach, Inc. has announced the completion of landscaping at the de Grasse Statue adjacent to the Overlook at Fort Story. The project has been a joint effort of the Council and the Landscaping Services Division of the City of Virginia Beach Department of General Services.

The Council raised $2,000 for the project. Exposed aggregate walkways and benches have been installed and plants such as shore juniper, pittosporum and weeping yaupon, which will do well so near the ocean, have been set. The landscaping and beautification of the area was adopted as the Council's HANDS (Home and Neighborhood Development Sponsors) Project for the year. These projects are financially sponsored by Sears-Roebuck nationwide.

The Member Clubs, the Council and the Landscaping Services Division are extremely pleased that the work has been accomplished in time for the Battle Off the Virginia Capes Commemoration ceremony scheduled for Sept. 5 at the Overlook.

Public Or Private Park Needed

Water Restrictions Lifted; Theme Park Up In Air

By Lee Cahill,
Sun City Council Correspondent

Everyone agrees that the 16-acre former incinerator site off Laskin Road is an eyesore and that something should be done to improve it. But agreement over that something should be doesn't seem to be any closer than it has ever been.

After a two-hour public hearing Monday afternoon, Virginia Beach City Council failed to approve three different proposals before the matter was deferred for another week when all members of Council are expected to be present. The absence of Councilman Patrick L. Standing Monday resulted in three tie votes.

Council has these choices:

- Leave the city-owned site as it is.
- Develop it as a public park.
- Sell it to a private developer for a commercial enterprise, something like a theme park.

* Lease it to a private developer for commercial development.

Interested citizens packed the Council Chambers Monday and were about evenly split between those who want the city to develop the property as a public park and those who want commercial development into an arthropark.

Councilman W. H. Kitchin III, a Beach Borough businessman, was most vocal among the Council members and was definitely opposed to commercial development. He wants the property to be used as a park for Beach residents.

City Manager George L. Hanbury suggested that Council have a study made by an unbiased group—volunteers from State educational institutions which have offered their services—to decide what the best plan would be.

Developer Jerry McDonnell, who wants to use the site by buying it or leasing it as part of a theme park asked only that Council wait a little longer before making a decision so that he could present his entire package to Council.

Councilman Reid Ervin wants anyone to be allowed to submit design proposals, while Councilwoman Barbara Henley went along with the study.

A motion from Vice Mayor Harold Heischouer which would be allowed private developers to bring in proposals was seen by Ervin to be a "cop out." Ervin said that Council should first decide whether the property would be developed by the city or by a private developer before it asks businessmen to spend money on plans that may not be considered.

Heischouer's motion to have the city prepare a bid document relating to the property to elicit bids from private developers, but to retain the property, failed by a tie vote. Voting against the motion were Dr. E. T. Buchanan, Ervin, Henley, Kitchin and Meyera Oberndorf.

A motion by Kitchin to reaffirm to commitment of the city to retain the land and at the same time get the staff to put together a park similar to Redwing and give no further consideration to a park or any other commercial development but to retain it for public use also

Beach Astro All Stars Place Second In Tourney

By Greg Goldfarb,
Sun Editor

The state champion Virginia Beach Astro All Stars have won second place in the Girls World Youth Softball Championships, held recently in Tennessee.

"We should have won," said team manager Ed Bealle, "but we lost the first game of the tournament and were automatically put into the losers category. That meant we had to play more games than other teams. The girls played 10 games in three days. We were up past midnight one night, and out at 6:30 a.m. again the next morning to play. Out of 31 teams in the pee wee division, however, we played and won more games than any other team. If playing conditions hadn't been muddy and wet, and we were better rested, we would have won."

A team from Florence, S.C. won the tournament, with a team from Bennettsville, S.C. placing third.

"We lost to Florence by two runs," Bealle said, "and the winning team beat Florence by two runs. We lost to Florence 18 to five. But having to play so many games is the price you pay for losing the first game in the tournament."

In Tennessee, four Astro All Stars were honored. "Certain players from teams competing in the tournament," Bealle said, "are chosen to play on the championship all world team. Four girls from the Astros were named to it: Shortstop Penny Kroll was named best defensive player; Pam Kroll, pitcher; Adrienne Shands, right center field, and Leanne Seligson, was named to the world team."

The Astro's record this year was 30 - 1. Tournaments won included Deep Creek Open, MVP, Brenda Leut; Craddock Invitational, MVP, Penny Kroll; Great Bridge Open, MVP, Lori Bealle; Blackstone National; Mario Qualifying, MVP, Adrienne Shands; Churchland Open, MVP, Michelle Orenduff; and State Championship at Chestersfield, VA.

At the Metro tournament, an all star team was picked from the nine teams participating. Four Astros were chosen: Pam Kroll, Kindl Ryan, Kathy Fosina, and Jenny Payne. Results of the state championship include: Astros 26, Chestersfield 4; Astros 14, Deep Creek 8; Astros 15, Great Bridge 5; and Astros 19, Great Bridge 4 (double elimination tournament).

The following history of the Virginia Beach Astro All Stars was compiled by team manager Ed Bealle:

For the most part, the girls on the team were picked up from teams participating in the city recreation program. These girls represent the best from 38 teams participating in the preteen division of the city program. One exception is Anne Noonan who played with boys little league and another is Twins Pam and Penny Kroll. Penny played soccer for Brandon Junior High and Pam did not play softball in another league.

This is the second year of existence for Virginia Beach Astro All Stars. Last year's team was young and lost more games than they won. However four girls returned from that team to provide one starting pitcher, the starting first baseman, second baseman and shortstop. These girls are Pam Kroll, Lori Bealle, Jenny Payne and Penny Kroll, respectively. The other pitcher, Michelle Orenduff, had pitched for last year's state champion stars and the right center fielder Adrienne Shands had played for the stars two years ago. Other members of

The Virginia Beach Astro All Stars, name, age, parent's name, school, and number of years playing baseball, (front row, l - r) are: Lori Bealle, 12, Mr. and Mrs. W. Bealle, Lynnhaven Junior High, 3 years; Adrienne Shands, 12, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Shands, Plaza Junior High, 5; Branda Leut, 11, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rowan, Princess Anne Junior High, 4; Dawn Garabedian, 12, Mrs. Jean Garabedian, Kemps Landing, 3; Sheryl Seligson, 12, Commander and Mrs. Spike Seligson, Kemps Landing, 1. (Second row, l - r) are: Anne Noonan, 11, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Noonan, Kingston Elementary, 3; Pam Kroll, 12, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Kroll, Brandon Junior High, 5; Jenny Payne, 12, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Payne, Lynnhaven Junior High, 5; Kathy Fosina, 12, Commander and Mrs. Andrew Fosina, Plaza Junior High, 3; Penny Kroll, 12, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Kroll, Brandon the team, while lacking all star experience, have many years of experience playing for community league teams. Only Kindl Ryan and Sheryl Seligson made the Astros in their first year of playing softball.

As a result of winning the Blackstone Invitational Tournament the Astros became the first Pee Wee Division (ages 9 - 12) team in Virginia to earn a berth in the girls world youth championship. This honor had been open to Junior (ages 13 - 15) and Senior (ages 16 - 18) divisions only, until this year. This year's world is being held in Nashville, Tennessee. The Astro parents determined, they needed to raise $7,000 to send the 17 girls and two coaches to this four day tournament. H. W. Jackson and his wife Margaret played a significant part in organizing and getting the fund drive started. He suggested a raffle and his employer Mary Jane Bakery donated a color television set as grand prize. Margaret served as treasurer and secretary, a full time job.

Jim Ryan, the team general manager, and his wife Connie organized every detail of the trip. Russ Payne and Dick Orenduff played significant roles gaining support from local businessmen. Berger King, Farm Fresh and the Virginia Beach Sports Club provided strong support.

Junior High, 5; (third row, l - r) are: Emily Jackson, 12, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Jackson, Plaza Junior High, 6; Julie Kight, 12, Mr. and Mrs. Richard O. Kight, Independence Junior High, 2; Tracy Argilan, 12, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Argilan, Hermitage Elementary, 2; Denise White, 11, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene White, Windsor Woods, 5; Kathy Coughlin, 12, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Coughlin, Independence Junior High, 2; Michelle Orenduff, 12, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Orenduff, Princess Anne Junior High, 6; Kindl Ryan, 12, Mr. and Mrs. James Ryan, Mallin Elementary, 1. (Back row, l - r) are coach Phil Kroll, Chief Petty Officer, USN, stationed at CINCLANTFLT, security group; and manager Ed Bealle, Lieutenant Commander, USN, stationed at Naval Guided Missiles School, Dam Neck.

The Astros as Virginia State Champions have already gained significant recognition and have been asked to play in a tournament in September at the official opening of Carper Navy Housing. The tournament will be one of many events commemorating Carper Civic Pride Week. The Chief of Naval Operations, Secretary of the Navy, the Governor of Virginia and the Mayor of Virginia Beach have been invited. The Astros have also been challenged by WWDE (FM 101) to play them in October as part of a celebration by that radio station.

Manager Ed Bealle and Coach Phil Kroll plan to move the team up to the Junior Division next year. As predominantly 13 year olds in a 13 - 15 age bracket the Astros expect to take some lumps. The coaches want to keep the entire team together so that as 14 and 15 year olds they will have played together that much longer and hopefully achieve and perhaps exceed the honors they have garnered as preteens.

Your Nose Knows

Virginia Beach expects to save $1.5 million by reducing trash pick-ups from twice to once a week. Complaints from local residents over the oppressive aroma, have been met with recommendations from the city to buy additional trash receptacles, bag trash tightly, and fasten lids securely to cans. If these measures are taken, dispelling scents, flies, and God forbid, rats, may be eliminated. If old metal trash cans with holes in them, or split, leaking plastic cans are used without lids or those fitted loosely, beware what may lurk around refuge relics.

FIGURE A - Neat, new $20 a piece plastic trash cans with domed, and tight fitting lids. These are highly recommended.

No New Plans If Theme Park Denied

Jerry McDonnell Is Asking For A Chance

By Greg Goldfarb,
Sun Editor

As sure as the rooster crows, there will be special interest groups opposed to land development in Virginia Beach. And, they are already crawling over the proposed 17-acre Neptune Theme Park, planned for the site of the old four blocks off the ocean on 28th Street.

Goldmark

Some Virginia Beach residents have given language in the plan, publicly opposed by the park patriarch Jerry McDonald. City Council will pause until Monday to decide if the land should be developed for public recreational use, or be developed by private enterprise. ■

Beach investor and developer McDonnell has asked city council for time to present his plans for the park. However, council may decide Monday that it doesn't want to review plans from commercial developers, at any time.

"I'm afraid that I'll not be given even the opportunity to present my completed plans," McDonnell said fearing his plans won't be ready until late September. "If council doesn't want theme park, that's fine. But, they ought to at least look at all proposed plans."

McDonnell said Virginia Beach needs a theme park, as a service to tourists.

"Our city is the only one on the East Coast with nothing for people to do if they don't like the sun and beaches," McDonnell said. "The theme park would provide for both visitors and residents."

I envisioned a good, new tax base; more local jobs; and a new parking area. But, I don't know what will happen; it's hard to guess."

McDonnell said he would be told by the council whether it would decide to review the plan. He said he would receive an answer by the end of the week.

Great Neck At First Colonial

Family Church Dedicated

By Terri Manfredi,
Special to the Sun

The dedication date has been set for the Church of the Holy Family, located on Great Neck Road at First Colonial Road.

Bishop Walter F. Sullivan of the Richmond Diocese will officiate at the dedication liturgy and ceremonies at the new church building on August 27 at 7 p.m. More than 700 families will then look to the Church of the Holy Family with Rev. James E. Dorson as pastor as their center for religious worship and education and community service.

A weekend of festivities will be held to celebrate the dedication to include Youth Day on Friday with a potluck supper and square dance, a dinner-dance Saturday evening and an open house on Sunday afternoon. Co-chairman for the weekend events are Gene Millette and current president of the parish council, Joseph Leschl. Heading the building committee is Art Motley.

The area served by the Church of the Holy Family was originally a part of the parish of the Star of the Sea Church, Pacific Ave., but the tremendous growth of the Great Neck area necessitated a parish centered at Great Neck. During the five years that parishioners have been working to realize the physical structures of the church, services have been held in various school buildings and at the facilities of other churches in the Great Neck area.

Father Dorson is a native of Portsmouth, Va., the son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Dorson now of Suffolk, Va. Father Dorson attended Portsmouth's St. Paul's Elementary and High School and is a graduate of Notre Dame. He studied at the Washington Theological Union, Wash., D.C. and was ordained in Richmond in May 1977. Prior to being assigned pastor of the Church of the Holy Family, he served in the parishes of Our Lady of Nazareth, Roanoke, Va. and Blessed Sacrament, Norfolk.

Father Dorson is assisted in the new parish by Rev. Timothy A.

Rev. Dorson

Drake who was born at the Portsmouth Naval Hospital while his father served in the Marine Corps. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Drake, now live, Brooklyn, Ohio. Father Drake attended high school and college at Borromer Seminary, Cleveland, Ohio. He studied at St. Vincent Seminary, Lake Latrobe, Pa. and was ordained in Richmond in 1971. He has served at Christ the King, Norfolk; St. Peter's, Richmond; St. Matthew's, Virginia Beach; and Prince of Peace, Chesapeake. As well as associate pastor of Holy Family, he will be the youth activities coordinator and will head their christian education program.

failed by a tie vote. Voting against the motion were John A. Baum, Henschel, Henley, Dr. Clarence A. Holland and Mayor Dr. J. Henry McCoy Jr.

At a formal session later, whether or not to permit a theme park on the site seemed to be a most important consideration. Allen Dalton, president of the North Virginia Beach Civic League, said the League had adopted a resolution stating that the city should retain the valuable piece of land and should not turn it over to anyone. When the land is developed, he said, it should be developed for the benefit of all citizens of Virginia Beach and retain as a green area. He said that since then (Aug. 11) he has talked to garden clubs and civic leagues and that if the city should retain the land, the garden clubs and leagues may adopt the park as a public project.

Barbara Lewis said that "everything I've heard about the theme park is exciting. Let McDonald complete his study and then make the decision." She said that it was "wishful thinking" to say that the garden clubs and civic leagues will develop the park.

McDonnell said he started preparing his plan last February but was interrupted in June. He said that a theme park was natural for the area and that he wanted it "to live or die on its merits." "All this bologna that comes in... keeps me from presenting you a package," he said that he did not expect the city to give him the area for nothing.

McDonnell said that if he is going to derive income from city property the city should derive income also. "I don't want anything free."

Oberndorf said about reported efforts by McDonnell to purchase property, including homes, on 27th Street. He said that he was not trying to acquire developed property.

Ervin said that he had been impressed with McDonnell's presentation, but that Council had a moral obligation to get public bids. As for McDonnell's comparison of his plans for the site to Mystic Harbor in Connecticut, Ervin said that the Connecticut park has a 200 site. "We certainly can't compare Mystic Harbor with the garbage dump."

Ervin also said that everytime he heard about the plan he got a different version. He said there was some feeling in Council to allow McDonnell to complete his plan, but "why should we let one man spend huge sums of money when others will get to bid? He said the environmental problems were horrendous.

Henschel said the concerns are that the beach borough will be impacted more with a theme park, about the ecology of the site and neighborhood integrity. He said one citizen pointed out the need for a nice quiet green area. I agree, the Beach Borough was shortchanged by recreational facilities. This is the last available piece of land in the area.

Mrs. Alice Mullen, of 2500 Atlantic Avenue, said that as long as McDonnell was willing to risk his own money, the city should allow him to proceed with his planning.

Wilson Cherry, who lives opposite the site, said that he has been in the tourist business there for 30 years and something needs to be done with the site. He said raw sewage is emptied on the site and that garbage is dumped there, too. "It hasn't been cleaned up in unpteen years."

Lorraine Hinnant asked where the city would store its sewage equipment which is kept on the site if it were developed.

Noel Gustler complained about the raw sewage on the site two blocks from the ocean. He had titchin come to look one night as the sewage was passing through the pipe. "Anything that goes in a commode was coming out," he said. "I don't think anyone here is in favor of letting that condition exist," he said.

Gustler said that he was for a theme park because the developer would have to correct the situation. He said also it would help his business.

Baum said he was opposed to voting quickly. He said he would not be in favor of disposing of the property but perhaps in leasing it. A clause could be put in the documents that if the land was no longer used for a park the city would get the property back, he said. "I can't say no to a use where we haven't come up with any other."

"I hope the public does not see me as parochial," Kitchin said. "I grew up there and I know what's going on. I'm opposed to use of the public property for any development on that property. I am not opposed to a theme park." He said that in all encounters with McDonnell, McDonnell indicated he had no plans for the incinerator site and that one drawing showed him plan on five or six acres between Baltic and Arctic which McDonnell already owns. He said the plan included shops, cobblestone walkways and a schooner. The incinerator site came in, Kitchin said, when McDonnell said he needed cultural activities. Kitchin said McDonnell should proceed with plans only on his property so that if the city did ask for bids it would not look as though the bids were rigged.

Ervin pointed out that the city's in the midst of plans involving large financial outlays of money to improve the traffic congestion of Atlantic avenue. What kind of reaction will we get from the public, he asked, if something were permitted there which would nullify these efforts.

Henschel maintained that "all of us really want the same thing. Our charge is to bring into this city as much revenue in the right way, we'll never know if this is the right way until we study it." The city should retain the property, he said, but he couldn't "see any harm in the private sector being allowed to come back to us with some kind of presentation. He made his motion.

Ervin said that he found her arguments contradictory to arguments

"in your own territory." In apparent references to conservative rezoning in Henley's Pango District, he said if you're improving the property you're going to have to change the zoning."

Alluding to some rather complex motions during the day, Baum asked, "Will anyone who even dreams of making a motion (next Monday) write it out ahead of time?"

about 'family life' in elementary school. Brief encounters with sex education will not stop the spread."

Sjoland said he's sure local educational and medical facilities in the area would assist in implementing voluntary sex education classes. Virginia Beach School Board Chairman Robert H. DeFord, Jr., agrees.

"If there was just some clear cut evidence that sex education leads to a decrease in these areas," DeFord said, "I'm sure the community, and the school board, would fight harder for some type of voluntary sex education program. Just adopting a strong policy won't answer the question. The school board adopted a hard line on marijuana smoking, yet it continues. Neither is there evidence that corporal punishment is an effective behavior modifier, yet that policy is carried through in schools."

DeFord said the problems confronting many of today's teenagers are complex questions with very few answers.

"Maybe we need to give blood tests in the schools to determine if a person has VD and doesn't know it," DeFord said. "I wish there was an easy answer to the problem, but there isn't. We need to continue to look at these issues, but sometimes the school board spends so much time addressing problems other than educational, that board members must set strict priorities for their actions."

DeFord said people are aware of the problems, but little interest in them has stirred since the Sun's last article, early this year.

"There were some ladies inquiring into initiating voluntary sex education classes a while ago," DeFord said, "but nothing to my knowledge has been actively pursued. There has been some requests for programs, but it is unlikely that any proposal would win the complete approval of the entire school board."

"First, we need to hear a call for action from the community. Then, I'm sure, the school board could find facilities, and possible instructors, for those who wanted to learn about preventing VD, and teenage pregnancies for those girls who do not yet want children. If a PTA would come forth with requests for special sex education programs, to be offered on a voluntary basis, maybe that is what is needed to stimulate community awareness."

Beach Cleaner Than Free Port

"I've never been to any East Coast beaches besides Virginia Beach," said Portsmouth residents Larry and Annette France.

"We usually come to Virginia Beach, however, this making about our fifth trip here," France said. "Most of the beaches I've seen were in Texas, at Galveston and Free Port."

"But Virginia Beach beaches are cleaner by far.

There are hardly any cans or bottles on the beach here as compared to Texas. The Texas beaches have many trash cans, but no one uses them. Dune buggies are all over the Gulf Coast beaches, and that's a lot of fun."

France, a Navy machinist's mate, said he and Annette will return to Virginia Beach very soon.

Sayasithena visited the Beach with his wife Douang, and their five children.

Their impression?

"It's very nice. It has great sand and great surf," Don Lumsden said. "We're originally from California and this beach is better than most beaches we've seen in America. We also hear Myrtle Beach, S.C. is nice and we're going there shortly to visit."

Hanbury Proposes One-Way On Atlantic, Pacific

By Lee Cahill,
Sun Correspondent

Virginia Beach City Manager George L. Hanbury wants an early start in efforts to relieve traffic congestion on Atlantic Avenue next summer.

He's asked City Council to decide on Sept. 14 whether or, not to have one-way traffic on Atlantic and Pacific Avenues.

Hanbury has been trying to get this done for years, along with eliminating on-street

For Council members who are too faint of heart to venture onto Atlantic Avenue during the peak of the holiday season, Hanbury showed slides at an informal session Monday afternoon, replete with traffic jams, and aboveground utility poles, parking on Atlantic. He says this is the only way to go. The Innkeepers and the merchants have been wary of the plan because of fears that their businesses will suffer.

For the 11 years he has been city manager, Hanbury said, it has been obvious that something needed to be done about Atlantic. And before he joined the city, he said, the Pampas Study (a study of the Atlantic-Pacific Avenue area cited the problems.

What with parking meters running 24 hours a day and traffic congestion, the resulting atmosphere is a "blight to the city of hospitality," Hanbury said.

He said the only answer to the problem is for Atlantic to be one-way north and Pacific to be one way south.

Future plans would call for the acquisition of a small corner at Fifth Street for a ramp from Atlantic to Pacific Avenues and the construction of a new bridge over Rudee Inlet which would be one way northbound while the existing bridge would be one-way southbound.

Atlantic Avenue, which presently has four lanes and parking lanes on both or one side, depending on the block would be relined to have four traffic lanes and a one way bike lane on the east side parking lane. Four lanes and a one way bike lane would also be included on Pacific Avenue.

Council will consider the plan on Sept. 14. Hanbury said he had to start working on the modifications Sept. 15 to have the plan in affect by April 1.

HAVE YOU BEEN IN CONFERENCE?

And...one of His disciples said unto Him, Lord, teach us to pray.

Luke 11:1

Do you have a regular conference with God? Do you spend time alone with Him so that He can give you instruction for the day?

Prayer should be one of the first things we do in the morning. Although God wants us to come to Him when we are in trouble or when we want something, He is even more concerned that we get our "marching orders" for the day. These directions are specifically found in His Word, and we should never begin our daily activities without them. Perhaps one reason we are so ineffective as Christians is that we do not take everything to God in prayer.

MOTION FOR JUDGMENT

Plaintiff, the City of Virginia Beach Development Authority (the Authority), seeks judicial determination pursuant to Article 6, Chapter 5, Title 15.1, Code of Virginia of 1950, as amended, of the validity of approximately $8,000,000 industrial development revenue bonds or notes (the Bonds) for the benefit of EPCO Potomac Associates, a Virginia limited partnership (the Partnership), to be issued to acquire and construct an office building in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia (the Project), to be sold to the Partnership, and states as follows:

Grape Lovers Grapeful

1981 brings another sweet year for Virginia Beach grape lovers. You can get ready to enjoy Virginia's grape season by ordering your free copy of the 1981 Pick Your Own Grapes Guide from the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, Division of Markets, P. O. Box 1163, Richmond, Virginia 23209.

The guide lists 23 vineyards throughout the state offering a variety of grapes on a pick-your-own or fresh-picked basis. Some locations also offer vines for sale.

"This year promises the largest crop the state has had in 40 years, says Charles C. Mayes, VDACS fruits marketing agent. Vineyard acreage is increasing in the state each year, and all are reporting excellent crops for 1981. Full, well-developed bunches will be awaiting pickers and flavor should be excellent. Remember, for exact picking dates, you should call the vineyard in advance.

The Department also has two new publications—"The ABC's of Grapes" and "A Bunch of Grapes Ideas" recipe sheet—to accompany the pick-your-own guide this year. In addition to recipes, there is information on picking; grape varieties and their uses; canning and freezing jam, jelly and juice making; and home winemaking. These may be obtained from the same address as the guide.

When Beach Is Snowbound

Procedures For School Closings

The following questions and answers should help clear up any confusion and should provide a ready reference for Beach residents concerning emergency school closing procedures of Virginia Beach Public Schools. May we suggest that you keep this information handy throughout the school year.

Q. For what reasons would schools be closed?

A. Unsafe road conditions for school buses created by extreme weather, such as snow, ice, or flooding, are the primary reasons; however, other emergency situations, such as failure of heating or electrical equipment, an energy shortage, or a major disease or epidemic could close a given school.

Q. Who makes the decision to keep the schools open or to close them in an emergency situation?

A. The superintendent of Schools makes that decision, based on personal observation of conditions, contacts with the National Weather Service, and on information supplied by designated staff members, law enforcement agencies, and other appropriate agencies or individuals.

Q. What options does the Superintendent have?

A. He may choose to close the schools and offices for the entire day for all students and all employees, or he may require certain key personnel to report for work. In addition, he may dismiss schools early or open them later than usual, based on his assessment of conditions, as described above.

Q. How can the students, parents, school employees, and other citizens learn of closing, early dismissals, or delayed openings?

A. As soon as the decision is made by the Superintendent, every radio and television station in Tidewater is notified, using an official code, by the Public Information Office or the Superintendent. Notification is usually completed by 6:15 a.m.; following that time, if you hear no announcement concerning Virginia Beach Public Schools, you should assume that school is open and that a regular schedule will be followed. If it is possible to make a decision earlier, notification is given at that time. In an early dismissal situation, the same radio and television stations are notified immediately in as far in advance of dismissal as practicable.

Q. What can parents do to help the schools in an emergency situation?

A. Have a radio and/or television set handy during inclement weather; keep listening for a reasonable length of time for any announcements. Please do not call the individual schools, the School Administration Building offices, or the radio and television stations. Those lines need to be kept open for outgoing calls in an emergency situation. Also, it is a good idea to plan ahead; parents should discuss with students what action should be taken and where to go in the event no one can be at home at a time of early dismissal.

Q: When will days lost during an emergency be made up?

A: During the 1981-82 school year, February 15 is scheduled as a holiday, but will be used as a makeup day if time is lost because of inclement weather. Additional days lost will be rescheduled by the School Board.

NOTE: Virginia Beach public schools open and close on a staggered schedule in order to make maximum use of our school buses. A delayed opening or an early dismissal must follow that same opening and closing schedule.

Plaque Placed

Cape Henry Light Feted This Weekend

On Friday, August 28, the Virginia/Washington, D.C./Maryland Chapter of the American Public Works Association will place a commemorative marker at the base of the old Cape Henry Lighthouse, recognizing it as the first federally funded public works project in the United States. The ceremony will begin at 11:30 a.m. at the base of the Lighthouse, located in Fort Story, Virginia Beach, Virginia.

The plaque will be unveiled by Rear Admiral Richard E. Rumble, U.S.N., Chief of Staff, Supreme Allied Commander, Atlantic and Mr. Francis W. Kuehls, Director of Public Works for the City of Baltimore and President of the Virginia/

Washington, D.C./Maryland Chapter of the American Public Works Association.

The construction of the Lighthouse was authorized by the first U.S. Congress on August 7, 1789 which directed a lighthouse be built at the entrance to the Chesapeake Bay at Cape Henry. As the first federal public works project, the review of the construction bids and selection of the contractor was personally handled by President Washington. The American Public Works Association has recognized this historic landmark through its Heritage Program and the Lighthouse is the focal center of their Historical Society logo.

Lynnhaven Mall Celebrates Grand Opening With Four Days Of Events

Lynnhaven Mall will celebrate its grand opening with a four-day celebration, August 26 through 29.

The opening festivities will feature appearances by several nationally-known celebrities, and two events will raise money for Norfolk's King's Daughters Children's Hospital.

Celebrities scheduled to appear at the opening include actress Victoria Principal, who portrays Pamela Ewing on CBS-TV's "Dallas" series; actor Jeff Conaway, Bobby Wheeler on ABC-TV's "Taxi"; Jill Whelan, who plays Vicki Stubing on ABC's "Love Boat"; world gymnastics champion Kurt Thomas; domino wizard Bob Speca and one soap opera star from each of three CBS daytime dramas ("Search for Tomorrow," "The Guiding Light" and "As the World Turns").

The two events which will raise money for the Children's Hospital will be the Great Ship Race, scheduled for 4 p.m. Wednesday, August 26, and a Breakfast With Popeye on Thursday, August 27 at 9 a.m. The goal of these activities is to raise $10,000 for the hospital, which will be used to purchase a transport incubator and a cardiac monitor.

The Great Ship Race will be a competition between local radio stations and businesses, with a "captain" and a "first mate" selected by the sponsor riding in beds designed to look like ocean ships. Each sponsor will also select people to push the beds, and a $500 donation to the hospital is required of each sponsor. More than 20 teams will be in the competition, to be held on the mall parking lot.

Breakfast with Popeye will feature entertainment by cartoon favorite Popeye and magicians. The event will be held in the Promenade, the food court on the upper level of the mall's center court. A limited number of tickets are available for $2 each at Kay-Bee Toy and Hobby Shop in the mall, and also at the mall office. The breakfast menu includes scrambled eggs, toast, bacon, and orange juice or milk; coffee will be available for adults.

Another major event at the opening will be the Virginia Beach Classics, an athletic competition between two teams selected by a local radio station. Principal and Conaway will serve as team captains, with the event scheduled for 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, August 29. Contests will include a tug of war, an obstacle course and a volleyball game.

Other events scheduled during the opening include The Incredible Domino Drop by domino wizard Bob Speca; gymnastics exhibitions and clinics with world champion Kurt Thomas; and a "Shell Dive" contest with more than 700 merchandise prizes from mall stores to be given away. Prizes for the "Shell Dive" include a $1,000 shoe wardrobe and a diamond ring.

All the celebrities on hand for the celebration will be at various locations in the mall to sign autographs and catch with shoppers. A complete schedule of events will be issued shortly.

Lynnhaven Mall, located one mile south of Interstate 44 on Lynnhaven Parkway in Virginia Beach, Virginia, is a development of Indianapolis-based shopping center developer Melvin Simon and Associates, Inc.

Virginia Beach City Council Actions

$34,000 To Improve Access

Lookout Road Issue Now Settled

By Lee Cahill,
Sun City Council correspondent

The City of Virginia Beach will keep Lookout Road open through Chesapeake Beach and Baylake Pines and spend $34,000 to improve a curve in the road between the two communities.

City Council by a vote of 9-2 Monday evening took action which dashed the hopes of Baylake Pines residents to dead-end the street on either side of the curve.

At an informal meeting on Council Monday afternoon, City Manager George L. Hanbury said that "to my knowledge we have never closed an active road anywhere" in the 300 some miles of Virginia Beach. He suggested instead that the road remain open and the curve improved.

He said Lee Eskey, coordinator of Civil Defense, supported the closing because in times of high tides and hurricanes the road wouldn't help anyway. Hanbury said, however, that he was the director of Civil Defense and he thinks the road will help in times of man-made disasters such as traffic accident and fires.

Hanbury said a small portion of an undeveloped lot would have to be acquired to improve the curve but that more land would be required for cul de sacs.

Mayor Dr. J. Henry McCoy Jr. said he had to agree with Hanbury that it was too much trouble getting a road open once it has been closed.

Pro-closure residents filled most of one side of the Council chambers while those opposed filled most of the other side.

Carl Berman of 4346 Lookout Road, Baylake Beach, said he represented 317 property owners in favor of the closure.

He said the road is a hazard of life and property, that runs always on private lawns from cars which run off the road, and most of the drivers are non-residents. He said eliminating the curve and the grade would create more traffic, and that closing was the only viable solution.

Bill Blue, of 4312 B. Lookout Road, owner and publisher of Guide magazine, said he has to travel the road daily but would gladly spend an extra minute to drive to Shore Drive.

He said cruising traffic would be reduced if not eliminated.

Steve Brown, of 4316 Lookout Road, quoted Eskey as saying that if the residents of Chesapeake Beach fled to Baylake Beach during a natural disaster it would be an unique situation because Baylake Beach is lower.

Bob Smythe, president of the Chesapeake Beach Civic League, said that the League is opposed to the closing. He said it would affect fire and evacuation routes and the remaining routes would be overcrowded.

"If this road were closed what would keep other communities from asking to be closed?" he asked. He asked for strict enforcement of the speed limits.

Edwin Holmes said he fully supported the plan offered by the administration.

Gordon Lorton, of 4316 Sandy Bay Drive, Baylake Beach, opposed the closure. He recounted his experience as a heart attack victim when time getting help was so important.

Michelle Zimmerman of Chesapeake Beach, related another personal experience, when her house caught fire. She said Pleasure House Road was blocked and the fire engines had to go through Baylake Pines.

B. F. Wagner, of Chesapeake Beach, said that curves at two ends of the road should be improved as well as the one in the center. He said he needed the road to go to church.

Councilman Dr. Clarence A. Holland said when the original road was opened traffic was minimal. He said the road would not be closed to pedestrian and bicycle traffic or to emergency vehicles. He moved for closure of the street.

His motion drew a call from the audience, "We have a councilman who is a resident of Baylake Pines..."

His motion received no second.

A motion to proceed with the administration's proposal passed with Holland and Reba McClanahan dissenting.

John A. Baum who made the motion said, "If we start with the unusual remedies to traffic...cutting neighborhoods in two, we're really starting something."

Turnpike Plan Denied

The Virginia Beach Master Street and Highway Plan now calls for the realignment of Centerville Turnpike to go through the Christian Broadcasting Network site.

City Council Monday evening by a vote of 10-1 amended the plan to include the change which City Manager George L. Hanbury is not likely to be funded any time soon.

He said the city should be looking for funds in the next five-year capital improvement budget, "but we don't have the money."

The change was part of the agreement reached between the city and CBN when part of the CBN property was rezoned recently.

Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf, who voted against the change, asked whether CBN was paying for the relocation. "It was my impression the taxpayers were paying for most of it."

City Planning Director Robert Scott said they are, but that CBN will pay for the portion which has to do with their access.

The change approved also increases the proposed right of way width for Indian River Road from 1-64 to its intersection with the realigned Centerville Turnpike. Both, said Hanbury, are related to the long-range development plans proposed by the Christian Broadcasting Network. He also said the scale of development on the site has generated the need for additional right of way to accommodate the levels of traffic. As a result, the right of way will be increased from 110 feet to 140 feet between 1-64 and the relocation of Centerville Turnpike.

Oberndorf said that the people of Cedar Hill believe the realignment would dump traffic in their neighborhood. She said she thought it better not to run a road into a neighborhood.

Hanbury said he didn't think traffic would be increased anymore in the neighborhood any more by the realignment. The normal traffic in the area does not go through the residential area.

Councilman John A. Baum expressed concern that the city was going along with the realignment merely because CBN requested it. "I don't think we should strain ourselves for CBN," he said.

Hanbury said the realignment actually would help the city by getting the junction of Centerville Turnpike away from the Interstate and Indian River Road. When the realignment was first suggested to CBN, CBN did not own the property.

Mayor Dr. J. Henry McCoy Jr. agreed that the realignment would help the city.

Councilwoman Reba McClanahan wanted to know how much money would be involved.

Hanbury said the city has not prepared any plans. "We're not talking about building anything now, he said. He said the city had to get the plan on the Master Street and Highway Plan before it could require approvals from CBN.

Oberndorf said she was reluctant to change the plan because when people find out how the roads have been turned around they will come in and complain that there had been no public hearing.

The church-state relationship bothers me," Baum said. He said that CBN had already taken property off the tax books.

Atlantic Garages, One-way Traffic

Construction of parking garages at strategic locations at the beachfront has been presented as one way to replace parking which would be lost with the elimination of on-street parking on Atlantic Avenue.

At an informal meeting of Virginia Beach City Council Monday evening, Councilwoman Reba McClanahan said, "If we're going to remove parking, 'something should be done' to provide more parking. Council is considering making Atlantic and Pacific one-way streets and removing all parking on Atlantic Avenue."

Hanbury said he had been working on an idea to remedy the problem with the cooperation of private property owners. He said that many innkeepers own large parking areas. The city, he said, may lease the air space from these owners and build parking garages. During conventions, the innkeepers would have the benefit of the additional parking while the city won't have to purchase land to provide parking garages for the public.

In answer to a question from Councilman W. H. Kit-chin III Hanbury also said that the city staff is looking into the possibility of system of paid permits which would allow hotel and motel guests to park free at metered spaces, but "not with much favor."

At a meeting with innkeepers Friday, Hanbury said that the main concern over one-way streets is that they would be detrimental to businesses south of 21st Street. He said a modification of the plan may dispel this concern.

"If they really want to see business hurt," he said, they should continue with the present system.

Capes Day Proclamation

The memory of Admiral Francis Joseph Paul de Grasse will be honored on Sept. 5, the Battle of Virginia Capes Day, by proclamation of Virginia Beach Council Monday evening.

The bicentennial of the battle in which the French fleet under de Grasse caused the English fleet under Admiral Graves to withdraw to New York is being celebrated this year.

Jack Robertson, vice chairman of the Bicentennial Commission accepted the proclamation, and Col. John Davis, in a Colonial British Army uniform presented, Council with tickets to the Walter Noona Concert at the Pavilion on Sept. 4, part of the observance.

Council also agreed to leasing of the city's school buses to the Yorktown Bicentennial Commission for its observance of the Battle of Yorktown.

Wilkins Working On New Book

Handicapped Superstar Loves Life And Sports

By Greg Goldfarb,
Sun Editor

Skip Wilkins won't call himself courageous, or a superstar, but to thousands of disabled athletes, he's the reigning champion.

"When I look in the mirror, I don't see what others see in me," said Wilkins, recently selected for the sixth time to the United States Olympic Wheelchair Team.

"People ask me if I'm courageous, or if I feel like a superstar," Wilkins continued, "but to me those words are just adjectives that can, and should, be applied to everyone. I measure my success by my own life, my family, and my accomplishments."

So, Wilkins is one of those modest athletic superstars. Why not? His record speaks eloquently enough for him.

He began setting records in 1975, only eight years after his 1967 water skiing accident that left him a quadriplegic at the age of 18. That year, in Champaign, Ill., he set the National Wheelchair Athletic Association shotput record with a heave of 11 ft. 4 in. Subsequently, he broke his shotput record in 1976, 77, and again in 1979. He also holds national records in the club throw (76 ft. 7 in.), javelin throw (49 ft. 8 in.), and discus (36 ft. 8 in.).

But this is only the beginning of Wilkins' amazing career.

In 1977, Wilkins was selected as Sportsman of the Year, by the Virginia Beach Sports Club. He was inducted into the Virginia Wheelchair Hall of Fame in 1978. Between 1979 and 1980 he spoke publicly and made television appearances. The City of Virginia Beach recognized Wilkins as volunteer of the year, 1980, and he was selected as a Paul Harris Fellow, 1981, by Rotary Foundation of Rotary International. He holds the title of America's 1980 Athlete of the Year in wheelchair sports, and is recipient of the coveted Jack Gerhardt Award.

Wilkins just this Spring competed in three regional wheelchair meets, in Virginia, Tennessee, and New York, and won 18 medals, including one bronze, two silver, and 15 gold medals. He also received four gold medals in Seattle, Wash., during the 1981 National Wheelchair Meet. Wilkins just pocketed two gold, one bronze, and three silver medals in international competition at the 1981 Stokes-Mandeville Games for the Physically Disabled in Aubury, England. He also set a world record with almost 3,000 total points and won the gold medal in the pentathlon, a five event competition in which he competed for the first time on an international level.

Prior to the trip to England, Wilkins and his wife Daphne met with President Ronald Reagan in the oval office to discuss the United Nations acclaimed International Year for Disabled Persons (IYDP) and presented Reagan with a copy of Wilkins' autobiography, "The Real Race." Over the next six months, Wilkins will develop a new book, and speak publicly.

Wilkins, 31, lives in the Great Neck Farm section of Virginia Beach with his wife Daphne. A Norfolk native, Wilkins is a 1967 graduate of Princess Anne High School, and a 1971 graduate of Chesapeake Junior College. He received his bachelor's degree in psychology from Virginia Wesleyan College in 1973. Wilkins is also founding director of the Crisis Intervention Home in Virginia Beach.

Virginia Beach is Wilkins' home, and where his family lives. He likes riding bike and has no plans to resettle.

"I really like Virginia Beach," Wilkins said. "Even though you travel around the world and meet many people, your own viewpoint doesn't change. I like it here. Virginia Beach has been a real encouragement to me for what I've done. Virginia Beach may have problems, but those problems are universal and not confined to a particular city."

Wilkins' coach is Wayne Whitley, a therapeutic recreation supervisor for the Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation. He, along with Wilkins' friends and family, shared his victories and celebrations with him. But not many others have sensed his feelings, nor the IYDP.

"The IYDP must be the best kept secret in Virginia Beach," Wilkins quipped. "Usually when athletes return from winning medals they receive appreciation from the surrounding community. At the airport when we returned from England, there was no one there to greet us. I don't really need it to help me, or motivate me, but such receptions would encourage other disabled athletes to work and strive and be recognized as positive and strong parts of the community. We must all contribute to our communities."

Wilkins Preparing For Pan American Games

Whitley has watched Wilkins grow and mature as an athlete. He has noticed a change in Wilkins from when they first began training together.

"Certainly he's changed," Whitley said. "It's like taking a person who is a good professional athlete, and finessing them up. He's become a much classier athlete."

Would Whitley call Wilkins a superstar?

"Sure he's a superstar," he said. "He is among the top competitors in the world in his events. There's not three others like him anywhere."

Whitley said Wilkins will begin training again within a year, in preparation for the 1984 Pan American Games, this year in the U. S. But right now, Wilkins is not really thinking about training. Nowadays he's traveling, spending time at home with his wife, and keeping his life in perspective, which can be hard while trying to forget a water skiing accident that happened, as he stood at the doorstep of a promising football career. But he appreciates what he has.

"We may be content with ourselves, but we should never be satisfied," Wilkins said. "We are behind what's being accomplished for disabled people."

"I've seen things affecting people all over the world. We must all deal with stress and pain together. But there's one thing that I kept thinking as I traveled. I knew there was no place like America. We don't appreciate how good we have it. I was in a place in Brazil and a glass of water cost as much as a beer or a Pepsi."

Wilkins said George Bush was receptive to calls from disabled people.

"Bush talked about our contributions as a team, and the general attitude of society towards disabled people," he said. "Bush said that this year we should make more strides to make more people aware of the accomplishments and needs of disabled persons."

Virginia Beach writer, and former newspaper executive, Joe Dunn co-authored "The Real Race" with Wilkins. Dunn has written "Sharing the Victory," a history of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. The book was published last year in New York. He is working on another book.

"The Real Race" is published by JCP Corp., of Virginia. JCP and its associate firm, Jordan and Company Publishers, Inc., have been producing pictorial histories of college and professional sports teams since 1976. The retail price of "The Real Race" is $10.95.

THE PASSING YEARS

Life passes by so fast, Lord,
I know I'm sure to miss
A vital part unless you keep Reminding me of this.
There's so much that I want to do,
A lot I've left undone,
So many plans discarded,
And a few I've not begun.

Life passes by so fast, Lord,
How often I've been told
It always does around the time
That we are growing old.
"For everything a season"
Is wise as well as just,
But I had rather wear me out,
Than fall apart with rust.

Life passes by so fast, Lord,
The days, the months, the years,
Lord keep a smile upon my lips,
And blow away the tears.
Touch me to join upon Your arm,
When pain and sickness strike,
To tell the facts from fancies,
That sometimes look alike.

Life passes by so fast, Lord,
And yet how kind You are,
In granting me the precious years,
That I have had so far.
So let the days grow shorter,
The darkest shadows part,
But put the wrinkles on my face,
...And never on my heart!

"I WANT TO DO SOME ADVERTISING, BUT HOW MUCH WILL IT COST?"

A lot less than you think. But the real question is: "What are your needs?" Do you need a brochure, a radio spot, a logo, public relations, speech-writing, artwork, or a full-scale campaign for you launching a new business or opening a new branch? Do you really need to advertise at all? Are you a small business or an established firm that requires free-lance services?

I will ask these questions at our first meeting at absolutely no cost to you. Then I will answer your question: "How much will it cost?"

Near Crisis In

Tropical Storm Dennis Was Mild; Mul

By Greg Goldfarb,
Sun Editor

Lee Eskey, Virginia Beach coordinator, Office of Emergency Services, said tropical storm Dennis was merciful last week as it touched Virginia Beach's coast.

"To my knowledge, the only damage Dennis did was to the shoreline," Eskey said. "The erosion caused by the storm is very bad. But fortunately, there was not much other damage done. If there had been any major damage caused by the storm we usually hear about it in this office."

Eskey said the biggest threat posed during Dennis' rollicking occurred in Sandbridge where thrill seekers defied safety procedures and snarled traffic to get a glimpse of Dennis' rage.

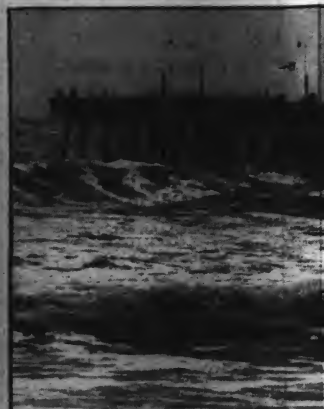

"The only real concern I had during Dennis' visit," Eskey said, "was in Sandbridge where people had come to watch the storm. If we would have had to evacuate there, we would have had a hard time. I know that the police spent hours keeping traffic moving along the Sandbridge oceanfront. If the tide had come in while the traffic was backed up, the motorists would have been stranded in the storm."

The last significant northeaster, a storm like Dennis, to hit Virginia Beach occurred in March, 1962. Although the "Ash Wednesday Storm" was not officially a

It took the efforts of over six strong men, and a hydraulic jack, to right Trafton's boat.

Even as the storm raged on, the Virginia Beach pier was crowded.

The resort strip on Virginia Beach was left barren of sand during and following Dennis' stay in Virginia Beach.

hurricane, it did more damage than other hurricanes that have threatened Virginia Beach.

"That particular storm stayed in the area for two to three days, and went through five tide cycles," Eskey remembers. "During that time, the boardwalk was undermined and several houses at the north end of the city were destroyed. We experienced severe erosion, and flood records were set in several areas of Virginia Beach." Virginia Beach's last major hurricane was Donna, which visited in Sept., 1960. It also destroyed homes in the north end of the Beach. Because of the destructive threat always present during storms, Eskey said people should be appreciative that Dennis didn't pack more of a whollop than it did.

"The only good thing to say about a storm like Dennis," Eskey said, "is that it makes people aware of the destructive force of storms and hurricanes. People saw the beach erosion, and high winds and surf caused by a mild northeaster in Virginia Beach; Dennis' winds never exceeded about 50 miles per hour. But take Dennis' intensity and multiply it two to three times and you can get an idea how dangerous hurricane storms can be."

Dennis, which became a hurricane after touching Virginia Beach and drifting out to sea, pushed winds up to 50 miles an hour, and dumped five to eight badly needed inches of rain in the area.

Shore study

A spokesman for the Virginia Beach Erosion Commission said damage is still be accessed along the bare Beach oceanfront.

She said whether the beach will be resanded immediately or not will depend on the commission's funds. The Army Corps of Engineers will also study the problem and make recommendations. If the erosion commission does not have the funds needed to repair the beach, it will seek assistance from City Council. The commission's superintendent is K. R. Nelson. Its director is Hugh Kitchen.

Plaintiff, the City of Virginia Beach Development Authority (the Authority), seeks a judicial determination pursuant to Article 6, Chapter 5, Title 15.1, Code of Virginia of 1950, as amended, of the validity of approximately $8,000,000 industrial development revenue bonds or notes (the Bonds) for the benefit of EPSCO Potomac Associates, a Virginia Partnership (the Partnership), to be issued to acquire and construct an office building in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia (the Project), to be sold to the Partnership, and states as follows:

MOTION FOR JUDGMENT

No. 1 Contender Dies

Walters Eyes World Title

By Greg Goldfarb,
Sun Editor

Full contact karate man Bubba Walters is ranked 25th in the world. Howard Jackson, L. A., Calif., is ranked number one by the World Karate Association. The number one contender, Demetrius Havaanas, recently died in a plane crash. Bubba is in negotiations to go 11 rounds with Howard on Oct. 9 in Chicago.

"They couldn't find anyone who was a contender, in good shape from active fighting and willing to fight Jackson," Walters told the Sun. "Nothing is finalized yet. I don't know the purse. But I'll fight him because I think I can beat him."

He is the current welterweight full contact karate champion of Virginia. His professional record is 6-1 with four knock outs. He teaches full contact karate at a local college and has studied it himself for 11 years.

Recent fight

Before the news of his world championship bid broke, Walters defended his Virginia welterweight title against North Carolina contender Lee Cartwright.

Walters held back until the fourth round before trying to hurt his toughest opponent in modern memory. He won the five round bout by unanimous decision.

"I turned it on the fourth round," Walters said. "He was one of the toughest fights I've ever had. He had studied my films and knew my every move. He successfully stopped many of my kicks, and blocked my hands up well. He kept me from hurting him by doing a lot of studying and training."

"The first round that night was to feel him out and see what he had. During the second and third rounds I realized that he had studied my moves and that I had better start a new offense. I came on during the fourth and fifth rounds, but I couldn't knock him out that night."

Walters also said he was tired last Friday night in the Virginia Beach Dome. He had sparred six practice rounds in the dressing room before facing Certeret.

"I just had to eat a few of his kicks for a while until things settled down," Walters said. "I don't know if I'll win or not, but I think I can beat him."

Walters, who picked up $1,500 last weekend for his performance and netted $7,000 in winnings last year, said he isn't mean, but just likes to fight hard.

"I don't consider myself bad," Walters said. "It's just that I like full contact karate. I like the physical sport, and I like to train and fight. The reason I win is not because I am meaner than my opponent, it's just that I train harder."

Walters said he hopes to eventually fight in Japan where instead of earning $10 to $30,000 for a title fight like in the United States, he could earn up to three times that amount in the Orient.

Walters' trainer is Gerry Martin, Chesapeake. His manager is Mike Eberhardt, and instructor is Soke Richard Ballargeon, 7th degree black belt, Valdosta, Ga. Walters is a 3rd degree black belt and a Chesapeake resident.

Walters is a Virginia Beach firefighter.

For Beach Teachers Orientation Set

School starts for teachers new to Virginia Beach Public Schools the week before students begin their first day of school. A new teacher orientation and briefing session begins Monday, August 31, at 8:30 a.m. at Green Run High School.

At the orientation, about 160 new teachers and former teachers will be welcomed to Virginia Beach and its public schools by City Mayor Henry McCoy, School Board Chairman Dr. Ray Woods, and Division Superintendent Dr. E. E. Brichell. School board administrators, city councilmen and city manager George Hamby will also be in attendance. The teachers will also see a slide-tape presentation about the city and the school system.

Next, the new teachers will meet with their subject area or grade supervisors; that afternoon they will report to their individual schools.

The week-long orientation continues during the next two days as the new teachers, as well as returning teachers, report to their schools for briefings and for work in classrooms. On Thursday, September 3, secondary and elementary teachers will attend city-wide meetings for their particular curriculum, and on Friday will return to their individual schools to prepare for the arrival of students the following Tuesday.

Many of the new teachers receive their teaching contract by mail during the summer and do not have the opportunity to learn about all of their job benefits; therefore, the Office of Personnel Services of Virginia Beach Public Schools invited the new teachers to one of three orientation sessions at the School Administration Building during July and August. In those sessions the teachers learned about opportunities for professional development, insurance and retirement information, payroll and leave, and the teacher certification process.

When school starts for students Tuesday, September 8, nearly 35,000 youngsters in grades K-12 are expected to show up.

Here's why we're the busiest place on the boulevard.

Quality, Fashion Furniture. Not only do we carry the latest trends but you'll also find in our showrooms furniture from old respected manufacturers like Thomasville, Bassett, Broyhill, Burlington House, Stanley and American of Martinsville, manufacturers who still hand-rub fine woods to a satiny finish and who take a personal interest in the way fine furniture is produced.

Big Selection. Nowhere else in Virginia are there so many home furnishings under one roof. Our warehouse and showrooms contain more than seven acres of furniture, carpeting, bedding, and gifts, from the Orient, Israel, the Mid-East, India, Mexico and the United States in modern, contemporary, Early American, Colonial and French Provincial.

Low Prices. Our low prices are advertised frequently. The savings that we pass on to you are made possible by our team of knowledgeable buyers through volume buying and selective purchasing. We also assemble much of our merchandise in our warehouse, adding still further to your savings.

Service. You'll sense the extent of our friendly service as soon as you enter our showrooms. Complimentary coffee is available. So is a supervised nursery where you may leave your children while shopping. And, if you have questions about arranging your new purchases, our salespeople and our professional decorating staff will help. There's no charge for any of our services.

*Quality, fashion furniture.
Big selection. Low prices. And service. Now you know why we're the busiest place on the boulevard.*
